✉ PICTURE THIS

I am a creative designer in Dubai. I work in Hor Al Hanz and every day, as I make my way to the office, I see the same scene of the Metro, Emirates flights and Dubai buses, which inspired me to create this illustration (below right).

✉ SERVING THE CITY'S NEEDS

I am very thankful to the RTA for their dedicated toll free number for passengers planning their journey either by Metro or by bus. The number, 800 90 90, is very easy to remember and the customer care executives are courteous and give appropriate replies to any query. Recently, when I entered a bus stop, I saw a new banner giving details of a phone number to call for any passport/visa enquiries. This is another really good initiative by the RTA, as displaying this information on banners in public transport facilities helps make people aware of facilities available to them. Hats off to the RTA, together we build the future of Dubai.

Coming up this week

TODAY

From HEPA filters to never-ending suction and bagless technology, the humble vacuum cleaner has come on a long way since the cumbersome carpet sweepers of days gone by. While you may not give your vacuum cleaner a second thought, the developments that have gone into making the most of this everyday object are nothing less than a feat of engineering.

MONDAY

Next time you step into the showers at the gym or take a stroll around the poolside, you might want to make sure you're wearing flip-flops. Small but highly contagious, a verruca can affect any age and can be a nuisance for all.

TUESDAY

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month in many countries across the globe. While women—and men—should be aware of the signs all year round, it's always worth reminding yourself of what to look out for.

WEDNESDAY

If you wanted to woo you may send red roses. Or, to show sympathy, lillies make a touching gesture. Before you send your next bouquet, take a look at the meanings behind each bloom.

THURSDAY

Thousands of visitors stop to pose in front of its giant perspex screen daily. With fabulous fish, sinister sharks, and the occasional diver, go behind the scenes of the Dubai Aquarium.

FRIDAY

The Read. Facebook page has been full of your opinions on our daily question. We find the best responses from our Facebook fans and bring you the answers that matter most to the people of Dubai.

Facebook chatter

Here's what you have been saying on the Read. Facebook page.

(Responses only edited for length)

Do you use email and SMS for important issues or do you prefer to pick up the telephone and talk?

Nowadays, the electronic world is taking over our lives, no more personal touches. For myself, if it's a person I know really well and it's not about work, I'd def call to resolve any issues and ensure that my idea has gone across correctly and not misinterpreted, but if its work and not a personal matter, email or txt would fix it.

— Gisele Moussawer

I prefer to call the person. We can't assume that by sending email and sms can make the person receiving it will reply or read it automatically. So by calling will make it easier for the person to answer every question you want to ask.

— Bryan Leo

Somehow I have started preferring online modes of communication to calls now when it comes to solving issues, or I would prefer solving them face to face. So basically calls is my 3rd priority after face-face n online communication(Whatsapp/

IS AN EMAIL ENOUGH?

BBM). Probably coz u can manipulate words in a nice manner which would help solving the issue while on the phone u will speak whatever comes to ur mind without thinking

— MirZa Saadat Baig

Directly call the person! To address the issues instantly and make a clear communication. Email and SMS would vary the tone and might be misinterpreted.

— Cai Mabala

Many people agree with comedian Louis C.K.'s argument that children shouldn't be given mobile phones. What are your views on the subject?

Unless the child is in dire need for a mobile phone, like for security reasons why not. Otherwise, if your school age children has their own personal phone, thats huge spoiled rotten. Teaching them how to use is one thing, but letting them own one for the sake of owning is not good.

— Danz de Asis

Kids shouldn't be given mobiles. It is too much of a distraction.

— Jennifer Betty

No to mobiles for kids. We lived a happy life as kids without mobile, enjoy being kids. You will grow up someday to use these gadgets.

— Mary Young

Maintaining a perfect posture doesn't just involve a straight back: your head, shoulders, spine, hips, knees and ankles should all line up; and by doing so, your spine, joints and muscles will work together more efficiently.

But isn't it much more comfortable just to slouch than to push your shoulders back and force yourself into a decent posture?

It sure is, but it's worth bearing in mind that correct body alignment improves your health, performance and appearance. What's more, lessening the stress on your joints and muscles will help you avoid later-life menaces like arthritis, muscle strain and back problems.

Office workers, in particular, will appreciate the benefits of proper alignment after years at their desks. Long-term damage can result from not only having a slouched or twisted posture, but also by typing, using a computer and even cradling the phone on your shoulder while typing. Even crossing your legs can cause tension and strain.

The good news is that there are many ways to try and correct poor posture and body balance, and with a little research it is quite easy to work out the best way for you to remedy the way you sit or stand.

Some people prefer to hire a personal trainer, who will work on strengthening the muscles that hold the frame together, while others opt for a chiropractor, physiotherapist or even a massage therapist to coax out physiological habits that have developed over the years.

The Alexander Technique has also become a popular choice in recent times as a means to 'unlearning' these habits. The process can be quite slow for many however, taking up to 30 weeks of lessons, but the results are generally positive.

Did you know?

You can improve your singing voice through correct body alignment, according to the University of Texas at Austin College of Fine Arts. With proper alignment, the muscles in your head, neck, thorax and abdomen can function optimally.

RELAX INTO A NEW POSTURAL REGIME

LOOSEN UP YOUR LIMBS

For those who prefer a holistic, non-manipulative way to correct their posture, the Dorn Method can be helpful in realigning vertebrae in the spine with just a little pressure of the thumb applied in just the right place.

A Dorn practitioner also places great importance on how the limbs and joints work together, and will check the respective lengths of your legs to make sure one part of the body isn't hampering the rest of it.

For those who prefer to work on their bodies as part of a group, it's hard to beat yoga as a means to improve your posture. Not only does it engage your core muscles and strengthen them, but it also works out supporting muscles while helping to keep joints supple.

Some of these techniques mentioned can be quite relaxing and often rather enjoyable, so it is worth considering taking the plunge—not least because it will help in later life. If you aren't sure which one you should try, visit your doctor, who can give you some helpful tips based on your own physique. ●

TRAVEL NEWS

SWISS takes to European skies with winter sale

SWISS has launched its winter sale with promotional fares on its flights from Dubai to Europe starting from Dh2,200.

All economy-class flights purchased between September 24 and October 23, 2013, and valid for travel before March 31, 2014, are included in the sale that covers 25 destinations in Europe, including Switzerland.

SWISS operates daily non-stop return flights with the A330-300 aircraft from Dubai to Zurich; from Zurich, SWISS connects to and from major destinations in Europe.

The promotional fares apply to SWISS's economy-class return tickets and include all fees. From Dubai to Geneva, the fares start from Dh2,200 for a return economy-class flight. Return fares from Dubai to Zurich start from Dh2,385; to Munich from Dh2,545; to Paris from Dh2,545; to Frankfurt, Milan and Rome from Dh2,585; and to Madrid, Barcelona and Vienna from Dh2,645. The promotional fares are available for online bookings only at www.swiss.com.

Mark Pey, SWISS International Air Lines Country Manager for the UAE and Oman, said: "At SWISS, we want our customers to experience more for less. With this year's winter sale, we are offering significant reductions right through the holidays such as Eid, Christmas and the New Year as well as during Europe's winter sports season.

"Not only are we offering some of the lowest fares to some of the world's business and leisure destinations, we are also offering our traditional SWISS values like personal service, hospitality and quality as well as our outstanding on-board entertainment service," he added.

France's capital of the Alps

Grenoble is an inviting destination as much in the hot summer as it is when the snow falls later in the year.

Neighbouring Switzerland might have developed a more widespread reputation for its ski resorts than France, but Grenoble, with its decent-sized and highly cultured city, provides an excellent winter destination for those looking to have a great time both on and off the piste.

And also in late summer, the French city draws in the tourists with its high temperatures and vibrant life and young outlook provided by the renowned universities there. Hikers and campers in particular use Grenoble as a base for venturing out into the Rhone-Alpes region.

A cable car is the best way to view the city from above as it slowly makes its way to La Bastille, a 19th century fortress, a tourist destination in its own right. Located some 280m above Grenoble, it even provides views of Mont Blanc, Europe's tallest mountain, in the distance when the sky is clear.

However, at city level, Grenoble is very walkable. A centre of academic excellence since the 14th century, many of the universities are located on modern campuses, but the historic heart of the city gives a feel of what student life would have been like in centuries gone by. As with many French towns, there is no shortage of cafes and restaurants to punctuate an enjoyably long wander.

Shopping is found in the largely pedestrianised area around the Victor Hugo tram station, with small, winding streets housing many haute couture boutiques. Foodies should flock towards the district surrounding Place Notre Dame—in the winter, traditional Alpine delicacies like fondue, raclette and tartiflette are in great demand, with Grenoble regarded by many as the food capital of the mountain region.

For many, though, skiing is Grenoble's most important draw. The city hosted the Olympic Games in 1968, and the nearest ski resorts—including the famous l'Alpe d'Huez—are only around 45 minutes from the city and easily accessible by bus or car.

l'Alpe d'Huez is regularly used for the Tour de France cycle race, and offers spectacular views in summer and wonderful skiing during the colder months. With almost 250km of pistes and 84 ski lifts, the town becomes a sizeable sports resort in winter.

Although Grenoble has its own airport, it caters mainly for budget airlines, so those travelling from Dubai should consider flying direct to either Lyon or Geneva, in Switzerland. The city is less than a two-hour drive from either city.

Grenoble has plenty of hotels available to suit all budgets, and for many it is seen as a more economical option to Switzerland's ski towns. The perfect excuse to check it out. ●

Did you know?

One of Grenoble's best known natives was André Roussimoff, better known as the 7ft 5in wrestler and actor, André the Giant. Best known for his role in The Princess Bride, Roussimoff had grown to 6ft 3in by the age of 12. He was inducted into the World Wrestling Federation Hall of Fame in 1993.

Get unique two-year service with Renault Duster

Arabian Automobiles, the exclusive distributor for Renault in Dubai and the Northern Emirates, has launched a limited special offer for the Renault Duster that includes a free two-year service for a starting price of Dh49,900.

Launched in May 2012, the Duster is an SUV with a spacious interior that offers the comfort of a sedan, and high ground clearance. Ideal for city driving, the Duster is also capable of being driven off-road.

The Duster is available in three trim levels: entry (PE), mid (SE) and top grade (SE+)—the latter offers leather seats and side airbags. Standard features for the SE and SE+ include twin airbags, anti-lock braking system, air conditioning, Bluetooth, an MP3 compatible stereo with steering wheel control, electric mirrors, height adjustable leather steering wheel, roof bars, alloy wheels and fog lamps.

Accessories such as wind reflectors, side steps, wheel arch mouldings, chrome exhaust trim, mud flaps, are also available.

Ashish Goel, Deputy General Manager of Arabian Automobiles for Renault, said: "The popularity of the Renault Duster among Middle East customers has strengthened Renault's position in the SUV-S segment.

"The Duster consistently delivers on expectations for specification, performance and space while continuing to surprise people with its price. Renault Duster meets the desires of SUV and sedan car lovers, given its strong engine with two-litre, 135hp capacity and a safe and precise steering wheel—the Renault Duster is making a difference in the Middle East."

Get on track

If you want to feel tyres on tarmac and smell the rubber burning, a Clio Cup race experience is spot-on.

When it comes to racing one thing has always held true. It doesn't matter how fast the cars are, as long as they are all competitive with each other. You can race ice cream vans as long as they are all roughly the same speed. If that's not proof enough, in the US a bunch of guys started a lawnmower racing championship.

The point is, if you want to feel like a racing driver, you don't need to be in a Formula One car, as long as it gives you that feeling of a proper racing car. Luckily, for anyone who wants to try their hand at racing on the safety of the track, that race car feeling is now available at the Dubai Autodrome. The circuit has just taken delivery of a fleet of Renault Clio Cup cars for the public to try out to get their first taste of motorsport.

Once strapped tightly into the seat and with the racing steering wheel clipped into place, the car is started with a simple push button. The exhaust gives a satisfying crackle and drops into first gear with a satisfying clunk. The clutch is sharp (as it should be) but manageable.

Heading out of the pits, you could be in a GT car at Le

"All you need to be able to get out on track is driving experience with a manual gearbox and a valid licence."

Mans or at the Singapore Grand Prix in one of the support races. It's hot, noisy and tactile, making the Clio feel like a very 'real' race car. Despite it not having a big V8 under the bonnet, it feels quick and nimble.

On circuit, body roll is non-existent and the brakes are solid—just what you need to try to put together a fast lap. There's an instructor sitting next to you to give you some handy pointers and, importantly, to tell you when you're about to get it all wrong.

The car itself is built in the Renault

FEEL THE NEED FOR SPEED

Sport factory in France and comes with a completely stripped out interior. In fact all you get is a roll cage, racing seat with harness and a race dashboard, as everything else has been removed. The brakes and suspension have all been replaced with racing items and best of all you get a proper race-style, sequential gearbox. Push the lever to change down and pull it to change up, just like the touring cars you see on TV. Each shift is accompanied by a clatter and whine, giving you that real race feel.

The engine puts out about 205bhp engine, but due to the car's low weight it's enough to make it quick enough to give you that proper racing experience. All you need to be able to get out on track is driving experience with a manual gearbox and a valid licence. Should you really get the bug you can move on by buying your own Clio Cup car and joining the UAE Touring Car Championship.

If you want to experience what the racers you see on TV or at the track feel every weekend, the Clio Cup experience is a great introduction.

But be warned. Once you get the racing bug, it's hard to ignore. ●

Mind your manners

Common courtesy and good manners can go a long way to you becoming a better citizen.

Dubai is home to over two million people with a mixture of nationalities and cultures. Therefore, it is important to be respectful and considerate of others when you are travelling on public transport, shopping in the malls, using the roads or when out and about in general.

If you behave in a polite and well-mannered way you are more than likely going to be more social and successful in life. As adults, we must conduct ourselves in a certain way as we are responsible for our actions. Although children should be taught basic manners and social skills from a young age, they are often excused from slip-ups due to their age.

There are several factors which should influence how you behave as an adult in Dubai.

Customs

In western culture it is common for adults to greet each other by shaking hands, while other cultures may greet each other with a kiss on both cheeks for men and women. Be mindful of your surroundings when greeting others out in public and when you are meeting someone for the first time. Try to decide which way is the more courteous option to greet someone and, if you are unsure, just smile and introduce yourself and wait for the other person to extend their hand.

Consideration

Try to treat people as you would like to be treated yourself. Avoid being rude to people as it can hurt their feelings and cause unnecessary grief. If someone is wearing something unusual to you, don't stare, point or laugh as this can be very offensive. You should also display general good manners, saying "please" and "thank you" and excusing yourself if you do bump into someone.

Likewise, when eating in public, good table manners are important. Eat with cutlery unless the food is meant to be eaten with your hands, and don't pick food from your teeth in public. When in a restaurant, don't shout at the waiters across the room. If you cannot get their attention in a discreet way, simply get up and approach them in order to speak to them quietly.

CREATE A MORE COURTEOUS CITY

Common sense

Sometimes a little common sense can save you from a potentially embarrassing situation. For example, when you frequent a mall, restaurant or public space it's important that you remember you are in a shared environment. When using the restrooms in a public place, always flush the toilet and put any tissues in a waste bin. Likewise, when you are moving around a busy mall or Metro station, try to watch where you are walking. Don't rush past people onto escalators or into lifts, avoid bumping into people and do not push and shove.

Proper etiquette usually means that gentlemen should hold doors open for ladies or let them exit a venue first. Take note and offer to let women pass by first. When on public transport it's also common courtesy for people to offer up their seat to someone who may be pregnant or elderly, especially on longer journeys.

LG Electronics unveils premium G2 smartphone

LG Electronics has launched the LG G2—its most powerful smartphone yet. This is the first revolutionary smartphone introduced under LG's new 'G' series for premium devices.

The LG G2 features the advanced mobile chipset, Qualcomm Snapdragon 800 processor that defines the smartphone's experience through high performance, rich graphics and outstanding battery efficiency. The LG G2 is the first smartphone to feature 24 bit/192kHz Hi-Fi playback that reproduces studio-like quality sound, far superior to a CD.

Eliminating the need for multiple navigation buttons, the LG G2 is equipped with a single refined rear key that serves as the command centre for power and volume functions. Long pressing on the rear-mounted volume keys allows users to launch QuickMemo, and the camera, making note taking and photo capturing even easier than before. Equipped with a 13MP Optical Image Stabiliser (OIS), the LG G2 captures clear images even when in motion or in dim lighting.

LG has incorporated a 5.2-inch full HD display in the LG G2, the largest display designed for one-handed operation in today's popular 2.7-inch width smartphone category. With proven IPS technology, the LG G2 offers superior graphics, accurate colours and clear images.

Priced at Dh2,399, the LG G2 is available in black and white colours at all electronic retail stores in the UAE.

How do recruiters learn more about you from the internet, and how can you stack the odds in your favour?

Long gone are the days of 'one job for life', as was often the case with our parents and their parents before them. We are now part of what the Harvard Business Review calls a "permanent job search", where our CVs are posted and then updated online, and everything about us worth knowing is out there for the world—and any potential future employers—to see.

While anything we physically post will stay on the internet for eternity—and likewise what others post about us (unless we ask for it to be removed)—there is still a huge amount of information available to potential employers that we don't even know about. It is information like this that is difficult to get rid of.

For example, data companies can trawl the internet for demographic and psychographic profiles for anyone who has spent time on a connected device. This could be collated from the amount of time we spend on social networking websites, our online purchases and even our leisure interests, which are collected from cookies, or small packets of data stored in a browser to recognise us.

Usually, these metrics are used for marketing purposes, but more recently, this sort of data has come to be used by hiring managers to research and assess their potential recruits.

Not only have studies identified that 75 per cent of employers actively research their candidates online, a further 70 per cent have decided not to hire a candidate based on what they have found after performing in-depth data analysis, which is often done through specialist scouting software.

But, as a candidate, you can perform some tasks to weight the online process in your favour.

First of all, Google yourself and analyse what the search engine returns. This is often the first thing a recruiter will do, so make sure those first mentions of your name contain material that is beneficial to your job search.

If your blog appears, ensure it is up to date and contains posts that highlight your intellect and ability to perform the job you want.

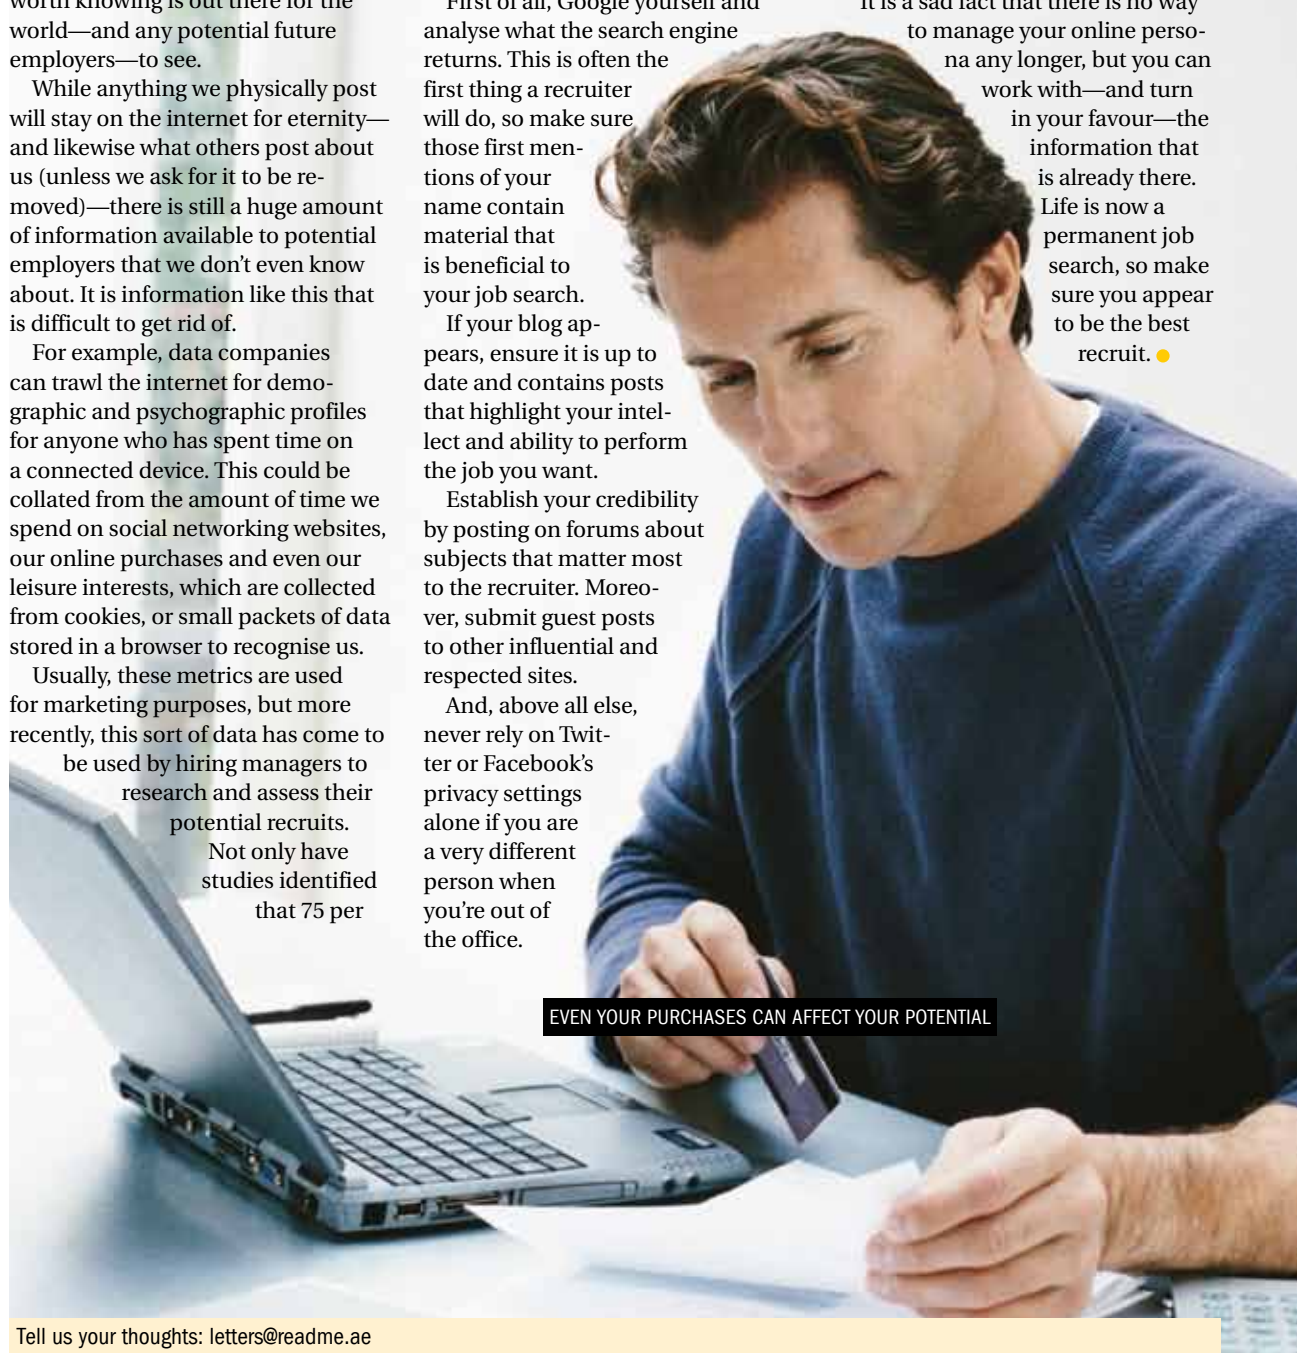

Establish your credibility by posting on forums about subjects that matter most to the recruiter. Moreover, submit guest posts to other influential and respected sites.

And, above all else, never rely on Twitter or Facebook's privacy settings alone if you are a very different person when you're out of the office.

Did you know?

In the past, it would be enough for a social media user to make sure a photo was 'untagged' to keep it away from the prying eyes of a recruiter. Not any more. With the development of complex facial recognition software, a compromising picture can still be found even if there is no link to your name.

It is a sad fact that there is no way to manage your online persona any longer, but you can work with—and turn in your favour—the information that is already there. Life is now a permanent job search, so make sure you appear to be the best recruit. ●

POINTING FINGERS

Questions have been raised by many regarding the security of Apple's newest devices, particularly the introduction of fingerprint recognition technology. Now, a US Senator, Al Franken, has even written to Apple boss Tim Cook explaining his concerns that hackers would only need to steal a person's thumb print in order to be able to "impersonate you for the rest of your life".

CURVY CALLS

Following the success of its curved OLED television, Samsung recently announced plans to launch mobile handsets with curved displays. At a Galaxy Note 3 launch event in Seoul, the company revealed that the new devices will have plastic light-emitting diode (OLED) panels, similar to those that have made the TV (pictured) a hit.

PLANE AND SIMPLE?

Fairbanks International Airport in Alaska apparently had to close an aircraft access route recently, after Apple's Maps app directed not one but two motorists to drive along the taxiway and across one of its runways. The app directs users along the taxiway but it does not instruct users to actually drive on to the runway.

TABLET TECH SUPPORT

The new Kindle Fire HDX will provide users with plenty of new tools, but if it all gets a bit too much the tablet will also include the 'Mayday' feature, which allows Kindle users to directly call up round-the-clock tech support via a video box at the press of a button. From here, technical support employees can explain how to work the gadget or even take control of it if necessary.

Are you a bad colleague?

While you might not be aware of it, certain behaviours could be landing you with a 'bad colleague' reputation.

BEHAVIOUR

There are many irritating behaviours that people do at work. But we're not talking about those little quirky, tolerable habits that can get on our nerves; we're talking about dysfunctional colleagues who are always on the lookout for ways to intentionally make everyone look bad. But what if that person is you? There's a good chance that you're doing at least one thing that is sabotaging your colleagues' work, either consciously or unintentionally. Akhtaboot highlights the top behaviours that will position you as a bad colleague and suggests how to overcome each.

INVADING THE PRIVACY OF YOUR COLLEAGUES

This habit is one of the worst habits to have at work, even if you do it unintentionally. From staring at your colleague's computer screen trying to get a hint of the email they are typing or the websites they are surfing, to rifling through people's drawers out of curiosity. This only means that you need to learn how to respect other's personal space and privacy. Sooner or later your colleagues will take notice of this bad habit, which can lead to you getting socially isolated or shunned in the office. This can affect everything from your performance evaluation to your ability to do your job.

BEING A SELF-PROMOTER

We all like to be complimented on a job well done every now and then. But being a self-promoter makes it hard for everyone to deal with you, especially if the boss appreciates public expression of enthusiasm. Self-promoters are usually not team players and try to detach themselves from the team in case of praise. They hunger for power and authority. If you catch yourself trying to self-promote, the best thing to do is to make your primary concern the success of the group as opposed to your own small wins. If your boss and co-workers take notice of this habit, you'll lose their respect, and could even lose your job.

BEING TWO FACED

Do you pretend to like someone then gossip about them the moment they leave? Do you try to use information given to you privately against people? If the answer is yes, this means that you are a backstabber. From starting rumours to contributing to existing false information, someone who persistently uses such methods to pursue his or her personal agenda will be excluded and eventually called out on their sabotaging behaviours. Treat people the same way you would want to be treated.

DOING OTHER PEOPLE'S WORK

Many of the smartest people can get pretty creative when it comes to finding ways to do more work, even if it means doing other people's work. You might be trying to secretly take on other people's responsibilities to make them look incompetent compared to you. You'll finish their reports, reply to emails not addressed to you, and even do their routine tasks without asking first. While this might seem helpful to you, doing such 'random' acts of kindness just to get credit for it will harm your overall reputation in the long term. The best way to keep this from happening again is to only offer your help if you feel that someone genuinely needs it. Such gestures never go unnoticed. ● By Akhtaboot—the career network (www.akhtaboot.com).

If the shoe fits

Put your best foot forward this fall with the latest shoe trends, from ankle booties to knee-highs or pretty courts to metallic wonders.

MISS SELFRIDGE

These boots were made for walking

When it comes to fall fashion, boots always take centre stage. Whether they are classic leather knee-high boots, quirky lace-ups or chunky ankle grazers there is always a variety of choices in stores.

Despite the Dubai heat, it's not unusual to don a pair of knee-highs. In fact, fashionistas in the city have been stepping out since the beginning of September in colourful suede creations and tough biker boots.

Embrace the fall season and opt for a fierce pair of printed ankle booties. Wear these with a pair of skinny jeans and a leather jacket for a fun look, or pair them with a simple black dress for an evening look on the town.

Marilyn Monroe once said: "Give a girl the right pair of shoes and she can conquer the world." This rings true for this season's thigh-high boots—perfect for any lady who wants to make a statement. A black pair will make you look powerful and in control, especially when teamed with a slick, leather jacket and oversized tote.

SEPTEMBER 30, 7:30PM

THE FRIDGE, ALSERKAL AVENUE, STREET 8, AL QUOZ 1

The Fridge Concert Series is back for its 14th edition, kicking off with what promises to be a stunning performance from Lebanese jazz pianist, Tarek Yamani. Opening the new series, Yamani will play a versatile repertoire of Jazz Standards, Brazilian songs, and original compositions based in Arabic rhythms and modes such as the Dabke, Sama'l, and Muwashah. Yamani will be showcasing these collaborative works with local jazz giant, Elie Afif, on double bass.

Food for thought

Flint Lockwood and his food-loving friends return for a second helping of animated fun.

NEW RELEASE

The first film told the story of Flint Lockwood (voiced by Saturday Night Live's Bill Hader), a hapless inventor on a small island in the middle of the ocean. Having been unsuccessful in most of his inventions—which included spray on shoes, rat birds, hair-un-balder tonic and a flying car—he set out to save the island whose only industry, the Baby Brent Sardine cannery, had recently closed down, forcing its inhabitants to live solely off a diet of sardines.

To do so, he created a machine that turns water into food and gave it the ever-so-catchy name of The Flint Lockwood Diatonic Super Mutating Dynamic Food Replicator (or FLDSMDFR for short).

Remarkably, the invention was successful and the

“His FLDSMDFR machine is still working but can now create sentient food beasts like shrimpanzees or watermelophants.”

FLINT'S REIGN CONTINUES

island used its ability to create all sorts of weird and wonderful delicacies to position itself as a major tourist destination. Everyone lived happily and the town began to boom. However, the decision by the greedy mayor (voiced by Bruce Campbell of the Evil Dead franchise) to order a Las Vegas-style all-you-can-eat buffet proved to be one dish too many and resulted in a terrifying food avalanche—or ‘foodalanche’—looming over the island’s main town.

Needless to say, Flint saves the day in a stunning, culinary climax that was rewarded by almost universal praise from critics and audiences.

The new film moves the story on. Flint and his friends are forced to leave the town of Swallow Falls following the food storm, with Flint accepting an invitation from his idol, the inventor Chester V, to join his company, Live Corp.

At Live Corp, the world’s best inventors devise new technologies to help mankind and benefit the planet, and the company has been tasked with cleaning the island.

On arriving back at Swallow Falls, Flint discovers that his FLDSMDFR machine is still working but can now create sentient food beasts like humanoid and self-aware pickles, shrimpanzees, melon-heads, mosquitoasts, watermelophants, and apple pie-thons.

As a result, it’s up to Flint and his friends, including Sam Sparks (voiced by Anna Faris of Scary Movie fame), a weather girl and Flint’s love interest, to put a stop to the machine once and for all before this new form of food-based life breaks free from the island and spreads across the globe.

After the success of the first installment, the sequel is widely expected to be as delightful and entertaining as the first movie, and should provide a feelgood experience for all ages. After all, the first flick was, surprisingly, a big hit with many adults.

What’s more, cinemas will be pleased as no doubt popcorn and hot dog sales are bound to double. ●

Did you know?

To promote the film, Sony Pictures donated more than 90 tonnes of produce to the charity ‘Feeding America’. Several food packing events were held across America, with the voice stars joining in with the good work.

Hollywood news

Bieber gives the boot

They have been labelled by many as a 'bad influence' on Justin Bieber, and it seems the pop star may have finally seen sense when it comes to his hip hop friends. After a string of bad behaviour, including wild parties, accusations of assault and even a mysterious case of missing jewellery, Bieber has kicked buddies Lil Twist and Lil Za out of his mansion in Calabasas, Los Angeles. Apparently, Bieber's manager, Scooter Braun, has been a catalyst behind the decision, after trying to make the young singer clean up his image. As part of the efforts, Bieber recently gave away 30 tickets to children from an orphanage for his latest concert in Singapore. Could this be the return of the squeaky clean Canadian that fans fell in love with?

Emmy excitement

It's one of the biggest highlights on the TV calendar, and last week's 65th Emmy awards didn't disappoint. After a year of hugely successful shows, the front runners were as would be expected, with Breaking Bad, Mad Men, Homeland and Game of Thrones leading the nominations board.

However, there were certainly some unexpected gongs dished out on the night. While Clare Danes picking up the Best Actress award for Homeland came as no surprise, Jeff Daniels being crowned Best Actor over favourites such as Breaking Bad's Bryan Cranston was slightly more of a shock for many—including the actor himself. Similarly, Breaking Bad actress Anna Gunn (pictured) bagged the award for Best Supporting Actress in a Drama Series, an achievement that not many would have predicted considering the sizeable competition in the category from actresses such as Game of Thrones' Emilia Clarke, and Mad Men's Christina Hendricks.

With a few more surprise wins along the way, even the host of the elaborate event, Neil Patrick Harris from How I Met Your Mother, couldn't help but quip about the surprise element of some of the evening's winners. He joked: "This just in. Nobody in America is winning their Emmy office pool. Surprises galore."

Screen star's surgery

Mad Men star Jon Hamm may have played chain-smoking Don Draper in the hit show, however it seems that in real life the star will likely be giving cigarettes a wide berth.

The 42-year-old is set to undergo surgery to remove a polyp from his throat, a condition diagnosed recently after the actor apparently began coughing up blood. Get well soon, Jon.

Hip hop Scott?

Kanye West might not be the only rapper linked to the Kardashian family if rumours are to be believed as, supposedly, Scott Disick will be releasing his debut rap album soon. Whether or not the rumours turn out to be true, 'Lord Disick' as he calls himself certainly has the confident swagger needed to make it in the world of hip hop.

Bollywood news

Fukrey take 2

It was a surprise hit of the summer, and it looks like the popularity of Fukrey is a long way from coming to an end. Directed by Farhan Akhtar (pictured) and Ritesh Sidhwani, Fukrey proved to be such a favourite with cinema audiences that it is set to re-release in cinemas again this month.

Happy ending?

Saif Ali Khan and Kareena Kapoor are set to join forces on the big screen in the upcoming flick Happy Ending. Although Kareena will apparently only make a cameo appearance, co-director Raj Nidimoru has confirmed that the pair will have scenes together in the movie, of which Saif is also acting as producer.

Detective Balan

It seems that when Bollywood stars want to get their teeth into a grittier role, taking on the part of a super sleuth is the way forward. After Ranbir Kapoor and Sushant Singh Rajput turned to detective work for the big screen, Vidya Balan will now be seen playing the role of a detective in upcoming film Bobby Jasoos.

Triple Masti

Grand Masti, the sequel to Masti, may have taken nine years to make, but the team behind it have vowed the next sequel will be ready much sooner. Producer Ashok Thakeria said: "We are going into Masti 3 right away. The first sequel took us nine years to make. The second sequel will come in much less time."

Energy Metro Station opens

Dubai Metro's peak hour timings will also change to better accommodate the increase of commuters.

NEW METRO STATION

The Roads and Transport Authority (RTA) will open the new Energy Metro Station on the Red Line of Dubai Metro on September 30, 2013.

Mohammed Yousef Al Mudharreb, Director of Rail Operation at the RTA's Rail Agency, said: "The expected number of passengers who will use the station will be more than 2,500 on a daily basis, and the prospects of acquiring additional RTA income by renting retail stores, ATM locations, selling rights of the station's name, as well as the opening of the station will contribute to the improvement of services provided to passengers." He added: "A plan has been set which guarantees the provision of bus services from and to the station and its surrounding areas, which will encourage the public to use the station. The operation of Energy Metro Station will be a new addition for the Metro project that will cover the needs of the public in the Dubai area and its surrounding areas."

RED LINE PEAK TIMINGS

Al Mudharreb noted changes in terms of the Dubai Metro's schedule to cope with the expected increase in passengers. The schedule of the Red Line will be changed, where the peak hour will start at 6:30am instead of 7am during weekdays. In addition, the tabulator headway times will be adjusted on Saturdays in the peak morning and evening hours to six minutes, while on Fridays the tabulator headway times will be adjusted to six minutes from 5pm to 10pm."

GREEN LINE PEAK TIMINGS

With regard to the Green Line, the trains' peak hours schedule will be adjusted from 7am to 9:30am, with tabulator headway of six minutes, and from 5:30pm to 7pm, in six-minute tabulator headway as well.

Kuwaiti envoy visits RTA HQ

Mattar Al Tayer hails visits of GCC representatives to boost regional cooperation.

REGIONAL TIES

Mattar Al Tayer, Chairman of the Board and Executive Director of the Roads and Transport Authority (RTA), recently received Tariq Khalid Al Hamd, the Consul General of Kuwait in Dubai.

Al Tayer welcomed Al Hamd and commended his efforts in boosting the cooperation between the UAE and Kuwait in various fields, while praising the relationship between the two countries.

He also bid Al Hamd farewell as the Consul General has reached the end of his term of office.

According to Al Tayer, the RTA welcomes visits by GCC representatives as these visits offer an opportunity for sharing expertise and boosting cooperation in various fields and which are in line with the directives of His Highness Sheikh Mohammed Bin Rashid Al Maktoum, Vice President and Prime Minister of the UAE and Ruler of Dubai.

Recipe

Yum chocolate macaroons

Placed in a pretty box and tied with a ribbon, these colourful treats make the perfect homemade present.

Ingredients

125g ground almonds
200g icing sugar
3 egg whites
2 tbsp caster sugar
½ tsp cream of tartar
Pinch of powdered red food colouring

For the chocolate filling

200g dark chocolate, chopped
200ml double cream
15g unsalted butter

Method

1. Blend the ground almonds together with the icing sugar in a food processor until well combined.
2. Using an electric whisk, gently whisk the egg whites in a large bowl until they thicken and stiff peaks form when the whisk is removed. Add the cream of tartar and the caster sugar then whisk on a low speed until the mixture becomes smooth and glossy.

3. Using a large spoon, gently fold in the food colouring, blended ground almonds and icing sugar.

4. Spoon the macaroon mixture into a piping bag, then pipe 5cm circles on a baking tray lined with greaseproof paper. Tap the bottom of the tray on the work surface to release any air bubbles and peaks, then set aside.

5. To make the chocolate filling, heat the double cream and chocolate in a saucepan over a low heat, stirring gently until smooth. Add the butter and stir until well combined, then set aside to cool completely.

6. After one hour, the macaroon shells should no longer be sticky to the touch. At this point, they are ready to go into a preheated oven at 160C for 10-15 minutes.

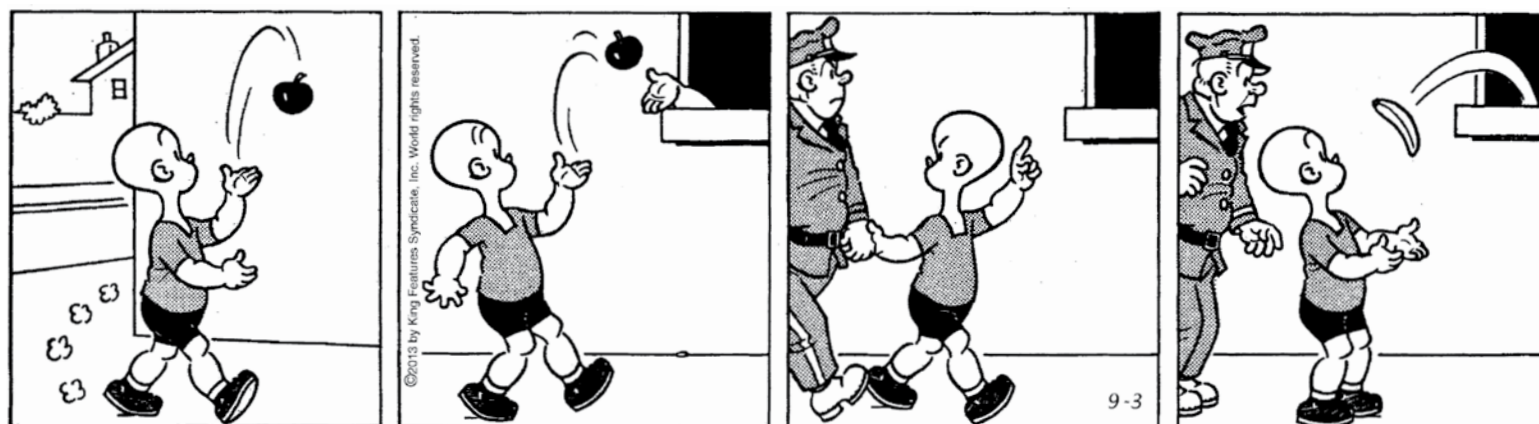

7. Once the macaroons are cooked through, remove from the oven and leave to cool for five minutes. Peel away from the greaseproof paper and set aside to cool completely.

8. Use the chocolate filling to sandwich the macaroon shells together then chill in the fridge for 30 minutes before serving.

What's in your stars?

The Read. astrologer tells you what you can expect over the next seven days.

ARIES

(MAR 21 - APR 20)

Have you not been sleeping well recently? If so, it's time to focus on getting a regime up and running again. Even as adults we need a little bit of routine when it comes to getting a solid sleep, so start training your body to switch off and get some proper rest.

TAURUS

(APR 21 - MAY 21)

Your stubborn side is about to rear its horns yet again. One person's comments in a meeting may get you riled up, but keep your opinions quiet in front of colleagues. A full-blown confrontation will only embarrass other members of your team—and yourself.

GEMINI

(MAY 22 - JUN 21)

A lack of energy has seen you slobbing out on the sofa most evenings and resorting to quick meals. While it may be easy to let this habit take over completely, there are two characters within you and the more active version of you is about to spring back into life.

CANCER

(JUN 22 - JUL 23)

It may be time for a makeover in one or more aspects of your life. While new clothes and an updated hairstyle may do wonders for your appearance, it's the emotional side that could do with attention. Ditch the things that make you most unhappy.

LEO

(JUL 24 - AUG 23)

A spat with friends may be on the horizon and—unfortunately—things may be said that cut pretty deep. It may be that you and a certain person haven't been seeing eye-to-eye for a long time now, so perhaps it's best to finally get things out in the open.

VIRGO

(AUG 24 - SEP 23)

A recent resolution to get in shape may be paying off, and the confidence that comes with your new physical abilities will affect other areas of your life. Your body and mind both suit routine, so don't let your hard work slip with unexpected social gatherings.

LIBRA

(SEP 24 - OCT 23)

While you aren't usually one to make a fuss over birthdays, this year's anniversary feels more poignant. Perhaps there is someone special who can't be with you to celebrate? Whatever it is that's making you melancholy, take the time to acknowledge it appropriately.

SCORPIO

(OCT 24 - NOV 22)

Time seems to be your enemy at the moment, and ongoing projects could now be suddenly rushing towards a frantic end. Try to manage your workload as effectively as possible. This includes kicking one of your classic habits—procrastination—to one side.

SAGITTARIUS

(NOV 23 - DEC 21)

No matter how juicy it may seem, a nugget of information that comes your way should be kept confidential for the time being. The person involved has trusted you to keep a secret and gossiping about their predicament could cause others to see you in a bad light.

CAPRICORN

(DEC 22 - JAN 20)

While you enjoy making the most of the weekend, it would do you good to take a couple of days out every now and then. Opt out of brunches, parties and beach days, and simply take the time to curl up and chill out. You'll be surprised how much you enjoy doing nothing.

AQUARIUS

(JAN 21 - FEB 19)

A recent interview or meeting may not have gone as smoothly as you had hoped, but don't be disheartened. While it's easy to look back and only remember the bad points, there were plenty of positives as well. Don't beat yourself up over a couple of mistakes.

PISCES

(FEB 20 - MAR 20)

While you love nothing more than showing friends and family how much you care, there may be one person who is happy to take but never gives back. The friendship seems a little one-sided, so ease off on the generosity to balance it back out a little.
