✉ TAXI TROUBLES

I don't understand why taxi drivers are always in a hurry and why they have to complain about the traffic, giving exhaustive and aghast expressions to their passengers. After all, their job demands them to be on the road amidst traffic. I have had enough bad experiences with rash, as well as rude, taxi drivers. I feel they need some good customer service training.

Sylvia Fernandes

✉ TREAD CAREFULLY

Dubai Metro has made life easy and economical, but peak hours still present problems, especially at the stations where the red and green lines meet. On the station doors it's clearly mentioned: 'queue to one side and let passengers off the train first.' There is a diagram, too, which guides everyone as to what to do. It's annoying when travellers ignore these signs. I would kindly request the authorities use barricades for the passengers to enter at every entrance, like the ones used for the ladies cabins. Also, due to the rush at peak hours, holding the trains for a few seconds more could make entering and exiting a lot easier.

TODAY

Searching for a job can be one of the most stressful times in anyone's life. While you may indeed be the perfect candidate, unless you can impress on first impressions alone, chances are your CV and application may simply end up in the paper-recycling bin. From brushing up your CV to cleaning up your online profile and reaching the right contacts, make sure you're giving yourself the best possible start when it comes to job seeking.

MONDAY

As one of the original fierce female pop stars, Alanis Morissette has enjoyed more than just a music career. Take a look back at how the Canadian songstress went from an angst-ridden folk singer to global superstar.

TUESDAY

From sugar to E numbers and tooth-rotting chemicals, there's a reason why fizzy drinks are advised only for occasional consumption. They may taste good, but do you know what they could be doing to your body?

WEDNESDAY

If you're looking to inject a little excitement into your life, a bucket list is one of the most common ways to start living life to the max. Here are just some of the most common goals.

THURSDAY

No matter how happy you may be, sometimes we all just want to curl up and lose ourselves in an emotional movie. So get the tissues ready and enjoy one of these tear jerkers.

Here's what you have been saying on the Read. Facebook page.

(Responses only edited for length)

Are there any skills you don't have that you would like to learn, for example swimming, cooking or speaking another language?

I would like to learn swimming and I feel incomplete without that skill.

— Rabee Ahmad

I wish to learn calligraphy and speak Arabic fluently because it is a shame that despite being born and raised in the UAE, I cannot speak their national language.

— Fatima Suhail

I wouldn't say these are my top 3, because that is far too hard to define, but here are ones that spring to mind right now. 1. Learn at least 3 more languages, those being Spanish, Arabic, Malayalam. 2. Sky diving. 3 Be better at math.

— Arman Hossen

Do you have the AC on throughout the year or, if not, have you given in to the rising temperatures this year and switched it on yet?

Our AC (air condition) is open only during night time. Especially when everybody is about to sleep. It not only gives us a good sleep but as well a healthy budget as our electricity bill decreased a huge amount.

— Melissa Lao Boo

Normally my ac is switched on during nights in June to October.

— Joie Talana Eva

No. Do not have it on throughout the year and still haven't switched it on yet. Can still manage with just the fan.

— Christina Scurville

Weather still normal. We usually open the AC only in afternoon.

— Siraj Rehman Kaka Khail

Do you stay in touch with former colleagues when you leave a job?

I only keep in touch with them if the friendships had evolved to social friendships outside of work. If they were just "work friends" I tend to drift away - I tend to keep all friends in facebook.

— Balaji VK

Yes I have with my senior colleague from last job, he is like a friend to me as well as he guides me in professional life.

Worrying about worrying

There are ways to control many anxiety disorders to prevent them getting in the way of living life.

In many Western countries, anxiety disorders are among the most common mental illnesses, and in America alone, around 40 million adults suffer from such conditions.

There are three common categories used to define most anxiety conditions: generalised anxiety disorder, obsessive compulsive disorder and panic disorder.

The first, abbreviated to GAD, leaves the sufferer feeling tense and uneasy, apparently for no ostensible reason. In short, the disorder could be described as worrying about worrying, with women twice as likely to suffer from the affliction than men. Symptoms include insomnia and stress headaches.

Experts say that to treat GAD in the short-term, sufferers should try to create their own zones of control by identifying the areas over which they have control and those where they have none. For example, work-related anxiety could have components that can be controlled and others that simply can't.

Ambitious GAD patients can improve their skills by taking courses and reading books and magazines relevant to their field, while acknowledging that they cannot do anything about their boss's grating personality as they have no control over it.

Mind-mapping will also help to address concerns in an organised way by understanding the emotional processes involved in any situation. In short, the best way to combat GAD is to understand your mind better.

Those with obsessive compulsive disorder (OCD) exhibit symptoms like washing their hands frequently and obsessing over small details.

While it is still a mental condition, many successful, driven people also suffer from OCD.

But by practising response prevention, it is possible to channel the condition. An example of this, for people who check their phone over-frequently for messages and email, would be to hand their phones over to someone else for half an hour as a means to get out of the habit. It's a little bit like giving up smoking.

If you suffer from panic disorder, some events can leave you breathless and gasping for air, a little like feeling they have just had a heart attack. This happens when the body goes into fight or flight mode without actually being in danger. Stress and phobias can lead to panic disorder kicking in as the body secretes adrenalin, leading to the heart pumping faster.

Deep breathing can help during the onset of a panic, while yoga or mediation can help reduce future instances of it from occurring. It is also helpful to understand that while a panic attack feels entirely physical, the condition begins in the mind. Therefore, many sufferers compile a list of "anchor" statements, or logical mantras, that help pull the mind out of panic mode.

If you feel you are suffering from any of these conditions, you should consult a doctor. By realising that what they are feeling is a result of anxiety, patients will be better able to cope with such conditions. ●

Fast facts

Fight or flight response is a physiological reaction that occurs in response to a perceived harmful event. It is thought to go back through evolution to a time when we would react to threats with a general discharge of the sympathetic nervous system, priming us for either fighting or fleeing from the situation.

Sheraton Dubai Creek Hotel & Towers reopens

Sheraton Dubai Creek Hotel & Towers has reopened following a $50 million renovation. Opened in 1978, the hotel was the first Starwood hotel to open in the UAE.

Located on the edge of Dubai Creek with water and city views, the hotel's new design offers a stylish relaxing escape from the bustling city for business and leisure travellers. Sheraton Dubai Creek Hotel & Towers comprises 268 guestrooms and suites. The fully refurbished rooms feature a contemporary design with a warm palette. The Creek View rooms come with high ceiling windows that open up to panoramic water views and Dubai's skyline.

The top floors of the hotel offer guests Sheraton Club rooms and suites, with exclusive access to the Sheraton Club Lounge for private check-in and check-out, complimentary continental breakfast, evening drinks and snacks, free wireless internet access, as well as refreshments throughout the day.

"The renovation of Sheraton Dubai Creek reinforces the hotel's position as an iconic landmark in Dubai," said Guido de Wilde, Senior Vice President, Regional Director for Starwood Hotels & Resorts Middle East.

"While we are committed to growing the Sheraton portfolio across the region, it is also extremely important for us to ensure our existing hotels are operating under the latest brand standards. With the renovation of Sheraton Dubai Creek we have embraced the modern interpretation of classic design for which the Sheraton brand is known for."

Artistic St Ives

The Cornish town has moved from fishing to art and tourism to become an English summer hotspot.

England's deep south isn't one of the first ideas that spring to mind for people planning a holiday, but there is a great deal to be discovered in the Cornish peninsula, with the town of St Ives being the perfect staging point.

Lying on the north coast of the country's most southerly county, St Ives was for generations a fishing port, but a gradual decline in fishing turned the town's attention to tourism and now it is a thriving resort for Brits and continental Europeans.

Incorporated by a Royal Charter in 1639, the town actually has its roots in medieval times, when the English Lord Provost took lunch at an inn and was so impressed that he subsequently decided to erect a gallows there.

Time has moved on, of course, and now it is well known as a home for artists, especially potters. A group of renowned artists set up an arts colony in the town midway through the last century, and in 1993 the world-famous Tate Gallery opened an out-of-town branch in St Ives.

The northern light, allied to the surrounding sea, has been an inspiration to artists and sculptors such as Alfred Wallis, Sir Terry Frost and Dame Barbara Hepworth. This led to The Tate building a gallery specialising in Cornish Art.

The building itself is notable, and is round in shape, mirroring the gas works which previously sat on the site. It is possible to buy a joint ticket there for the Tate and the Hepworth

Fun facts

St Ives is known for the traditional riddle: "As I was going to St. Ives, I met a man with seven wives, Each wife had seven sacks, Each sack had seven cats, Each cat had seven kits: Kits, cats, sacks, and wives, How many were there going to St. Ives?" There are a number of different answers.

studio.

The Barbara Hepworth Museum and Sculpture Garden is a must for sculpture lovers and showcases the work of one of the twentieth century's most important sculptors. Artworks in bronze, stone and wood are on display.

In the centre of St Ives are quaint cottages, small alleys, craft and gift shops selling original paintings from local and visiting artists.

Aside from its art, the area surrounding St Ives is well known for its pristine beaches and coves. Carbis Bay, for example, is a picturesque bay with outstanding views and a magnificent sandy beach offering a range of recreational activities such as swimming, boating, surfing, rock climbing and tennis.

Porthmeor Beach, too, is a big draw, boasting a half-mile-long beach with firm sands. Surfers will enjoy its good waves, while families will appreciate its safe, intimate and laid-back feel.

Emirates operates a number of flights each day to London Heathrow, and from there St Ives is a train ride away. Of course, being in England, the weather can be variable, but the southwest enjoys the country's best climate, and the summer sun in Cornwall is usually quite beautiful. ●

Al Habtoor Motors unveils JAC Motors vehicles in UAE

Al Habtoor Motors has launched JAC Motors in the UAE thereby enabling the Chinese automaker to bring its popular line-up of passenger and commercial vehicles to the country.

"Al Habtoor Motors is proud to introduce the JAC product line in the UAE. We look forward to launching the state of the art JAC Motors showroom at Airport Road in Dubai in the coming months. Until then, Al Habtoor Motors will be exhibiting three passenger models – J5, J6 and M5 and three commercial models – Sunray, JH46 and JH55 at the Al Habtoor Motors owned, The CarZone Megastore showroom in Al Quoz," said Joe Rogan, Director of Sales at Al Habtoor Motors.

"The decision to exhibit the vehicles in The CarZone showroom was made to allow an early response from our prospects. We want all the residents of the UAE to visit us and test and review the vehicles for themselves. All vehicles are available for test drive and sale," he noted.

"We are confident that this strategic alliance between Al Habtoor Motors and JAC Motors will make JAC Motors a highly competitive automotive brand in the UAE passenger and commercial vehicles segment in the next five years," he added.

JAC has been a comprehensive automaker for the past 50 years with full-line independent brand vehicles in China, including light, medium and heavy-duty trucks, MPV, SUV, sedan, bus chassis, buses, engineering machinery, engines, gearboxes and other key components.

There are few greater pleasures in life than wafting along in a Bentley. The company seem incapable of building a waftless car. Even the somewhat compromised models from the 1980s still have that 'gentleman's club on wheels' feeling that almost no other manufacturer can manage.

One of the best Bentleys to be in for a good wafting is the Flying Spur. Launched back in 2005, the four-door version of the Bentley GT (as it was dubbed) was a huge hit in the Gulf region. It's still a great car to this day, but in the nine years since production began, the competition had caught up and technology had moved on. It was starting to suffer from an out-of-date infotainment system and a rear end that was somewhat compromised by having to conform to the GT's lines. What worked well on the coupé didn't sit well on the four-door platform.

So last year Bentley released a brand new version of the Spur, to bring it back to top of the 'must have' list of luxury saloon cars. The company released the Spur from the shackles of the GT to be a clear model in its own right. It still needed Bentley DNA, but was no longer tied to the form of the curvier coupé.

One of the most striking points about the new car is that Bentley has fixed the back end, which now shares some of its lines with the bigger Mulsanne. It works so much better than with the previous car. At the front it's still clearly a Bentley with the double round lights and famous grill, but its now more regal and frankly prettier than before.

Inside, the trim is even better, which is a hard ask for a company that arguably makes the best car interiors in the world. Everything feels like it has been hewn from granite and will last a lifetime. There's no flimsy switchgear or ill-placed controls. Everything is spot on and within reach of your fingertips. A Bentley owner really shouldn't have to reach out for something. It just wouldn't be right.

On the road it's composed and solid, soaking up the bumps and potholes with ease. But stick your foot down and it comes alive. It feels heavy, but that simply makes it feel more planted. It's incredible that a car weighing in at 2,475 kgs can perform the way it does. Apart from the very clever suspension, the engine is sublime. Fitted with the 6.0 litre W12, the Spur will sprint to 100 km/h in just 4.3 seconds. All whilst you're sat inside enjoying the peace and quiet in oppulent luxury.

To find fault with the Flying Spur is pretty hard to say the least. It's not the easiest car to park, but there are a lot of sensors to help you with that. It's also weighty through the steering, but Bentley owners tend to like their cars like that.

Unlike the Mulsanne, which does have its faults (albeit small ones), the Flying Spur is now without doubt one of the best cars that Bentley currently produce. Or may have ever produced. ●

Bentley's new Flying Spur takes luxury motoring to a new level.

Samsung launches refrigerator for the Middle East region

Samsung Electronics has launched a premium refrigerator especially designed for the Middle East. The new top mounted RT6000 refrigerator keeps food fresh while reducing its energy consumption with its advanced technologies and superior design.

Samsung's all-around cooling feature evenly cools the fridge by blowing cold air through multiple outlets and restores an optimal temperature when the door is opened and closed.

The RT6000 also comes equipped with power cool, a mode that allows consumers to quickly chill drinks and food to whatever temperatures they choose, and the moist fresh zone, which maintains optimal humidity levels for long-lasting fruits and vegetables.

The anti-bacterial protector provides a second line of defence against early food spoilage—and food odours.

Together, they promote better air circulation to powerfully sterilise and deodorise the RT6000.

At the core of the refrigerator's design is the exclusive digital inverter technology, an innovative solution that taps into the heart of the refrigerator to control its speed and to ensure that it delivers cool air only when required.

Thanks to the digital inverter technology, the RT6000 is a high-performance appliance that uses 47 per cent less energy than conventional freezers, and is rather quiet at only 39dB.

Detecting disasters

The science behind disaster monitoring still has some way to go.

For most of mankind's history, people would be warned of natural disasters by witnessing the sudden and widespread migration of birds or other animals with a keener sense of looming danger than our own.

The trouble was that it was often too late to take action before a tornado, lightning storm, flood, tsunami, or earthquake would strike. This is still the case today in the many parts of the world.

We still have only rudimentary warning mechanisms for weather-related disasters, with few systems in place to warn of disaster.

Insurers label such disasters as "acts of God", indicating how we accept them as a fact of life and admitting how difficult it is to forecast unpredictable events.

However, over recent decades, scientists have made great strides in understanding the causes of natural disasters and removing much of the mystery surrounding such events.

Although we are still unable to predict many natural disasters with any degree of confidence, we now have the technical ability to detect and track them with a great deal of accuracy. Many modern societies have begun development of networks of sensors to detect the occurrence of these disasters.

For example, America has now put in place a widespread system of lightning detectors that can sense and record a wide variety of real-time information about lightning strikes occurring over most of the country.

Also under construction is a

PREDICT AND PREVENT

"All of the data that we can now collect on natural disasters must first be converted to information as it happens," explains John Flanagan, an early warning expert. He continues: "The analysis of this data must be completely automated and done in real time to eliminate human errors and wasted time."

This information, Flanagan adds, must be communicated in real time without error or false alarms to provide advanced warnings to the maximum number of potentially impacted users that is possible.

It is only once the variables are ironed out, and that intelligence is better disseminated, that the power of disaster prediction technology will live up to its potential. ● national system of Doppler radar installations which, although primarily designed for aircraft safety, can also detect and track the direction and magnitude of tornadoes.

The US also has a network of ocean buoys that have been designed to work with satellites above in order to detect the shifts in sea level that come with a tsunami threat. And on land, the US government has placed a large number of seismographic devices to monitor geologically active parts of the country for earthquakes.

Now, our ability to "see" the world and natural events around us has been greatly extended and enhanced with these new technologies. However, there is still more development to be done to narrow down the margin of error from devices like these.

Early warning

Scientists are bracing for a serious El Niño weather event this year, with a 70 per cent chance of floods and serious droughts across the globe. This natural phenomenon, which comes from warming waters in the Pacific, could be the worst since 1997-98, according to Australia's Bureau of Meteorology.

Beauty myths uncovered

We examine health and beauty lore to see which age-old tales are fact or fiction.

Almost everyone has heard of beauty myths, from filing your nails in the wrong direction to washing your hair with conditioner before shampoo. So do they really work? We take a look at some of the most common beauty myths to reveal which are true and which are false.

SHAVE AWAY

Myth 1 Shaving causes your hair to grow back thicker and faster

This is false. For most men and women shaving is part of their grooming routine. For years razors have been given a bad name but shaving actually has no effect on hair growth or thickness. When you shave, you are cutting the hair at the thickest area, the mid-shaft. Therefore when the hair begins to grow back, it is the thicker part of the hair shaft that you can feel and see. This is simply the hair follicle coming back in the form of stubble, which is larger. This happens because the razor cuts the hair straight across the shaft which results in a stiffer feeling.

Myth 2 Toothpaste helps get rid of pimples

This is false. It's more than likely that you have put toothpaste on a pimple to try and get rid of it on some occasion. Toothpaste contains certain ingredients such as mint, baking soda, menthol and essential oils that cause pimples to dry out. However, there is nothing in toothpaste that makes it a more effective method than other treatments. In fact toothpaste can irritate the skin, causing redness, so while it may work for some, it doesn't for others.

Myth 3 If you pluck a grey hair, more will grow

This is false. If you find yourself with the odd grey hair breaking through your luscious locks, don't worry about plucking it out. Two hairs won't grow back in its place. It's physically impossible to increase the number of follicles you have on your head as a result of plucking out a hair. Plucking the hair will get rid of the grey but only temporarily. The follicle is still alive and will produce another hair to replace it, however it won't cause more to grow.

Myth 4 Chocolate gives you spots

Both true and false. The production of too much oil and bacteria in the skin is the main cause of spots. Therefore having chocolate doesn't make too much of a difference. Research has not identified any components of chocolate that can either trigger acne or make existing acne worse. There is direct link between chocolate and pimples but it's best to go easy on the amount of chocolate you eat as the rapid fluctuations in our blood sugar levels may affect the function of sebaceous glands in the body, potentially aggravating acne. In its purest form, dark chocolate has a high cocoa content and studies have shown that when eaten in moderation, it can help to promote cardiac health.

TREAT YOURSELF

Myth 5 Filing your nails in one direction helps

This is false. Filing your nails in one direction, instead of back and forth won't help prevent breakage. Your nails grow and get their health from the base, not from the edge that extends beyond your fingertip and gets filed. Filing your nails in both directions won't cause any damage so long as you go easy. However, you should file from each corner of the nail, toward the middle to avoid splitting.

Some management myths

Listening to old-fashioned advice may prove useful in some cases, or it could perhaps harm your career.

people with transparent fairness, you will be trusted and appreciated for your fairness, even by those who are not performing well.

MYTH #3: MANAGERS SHOULDN'T DELEGATE MAJOR TASKS

Many managers resort to dozens of reasons as to why they should not delegate major projects to their team. If you feel that you are more comfortable when you're in full control then you probably aren't fit for a managerial position. As a manager, your main job is to set goals, clarify objectives and define results. With proper delegation, you will be free to attend to higher-level obligations that you didn't have the time to fulfill. Delegating is also an excellent way to help your employees grow and develop new skills. It's important to trust your team and their abilities, and then train them in a way that gets the job done.

“Delegating is also an excellent way to help your employees grow and develop new skills.”

MYTH #4: A MANAGER SHOULD BE THE SMARTEST PERSON IN THE ROOM

You have to be smart and highly competent to be a good manager, but you don't have to be the smartest person in the room. Indeed, when you consistently demonstrate your leadership skill and position yourself as an empowering leader who attracts and retains the best people, watch your career take off. A great manager identifies and draws on the strengths of each team member to bring out the best in them. ●

By Akhtaboot—the career network (www.akhtaboot.com).

MANAGEMENT

There are several management myths that are still widely used to this day. While there is nothing wrong with learning from past experiences, problems will arise when management is overly influenced by deeply held beliefs because they think that it will work in all situations. These practices might seem like common wisdom, but problems arise when management is faced with a new situation that is different from the past and when what was “learned” was right in the past may have been wrong, or incomplete, in the first place. A leader who manages teams by myth can easily misinterpret actual events and quickly fail to maintain the trust of his or her employees. Akhtaboot busts the most common management myths with a dash of real-world advice.

MYTH #1: AUTONOMY MEANS NOT INTERFERING WITH EMPLOYEES' FULL CONTROL OVER THEIR TASKS

There is a scientific reason behind why employees are less effective when tasks are dictated. When Employees lose their sense of control over tasks, the brain's emotional response centre can actually cause a decrease in cognitive functioning. Whether real or imagined, the perception of being in control, would presumably lead to an increase in productivity. But this doesn't mean that management should stand back and let autonomous teams run themselves. They need to provide strong direction and support to make sure that team activities are aligned with the greater organisational vision. Keep in mind that autonomy represents freedom for the employee, but ambiguity is freedom without direction.

MYTH #2: MANAGERS SHOULD TREAT ALL EMPLOYEES THE SAME

By treating all employees the same, regardless of their individual contributions, you will foster an environment of resentment and anger for the lack of recognition for those who work harder than the rest. Being fair means treating each employee appropriately based on the situations and contributions of that employee. Doing so will help you create stronger, better relationships with your employees based on trust and respect. When you manage your

Rock it out

From pop to hip-hop or rock, these eye catching outfits are perfect for a fashionable night of music.

Whether you're enjoying the mellow tunes of Lionel Richie or rocking out to Kings of Leon, there is an outfit for every musical occasion this spring. Choosing an outfit that compliments the type of music being played is a must. For an outdoor beach concert, go for shorts and neon colours. Skinny jeans and a leather jacket works well for an indoor event, while vintage band T-shirts and denim is always a go-to gig ensemble.

Choose a fitted midi dress in a faded blue hue for a casual look. We love this ASOS version with gold zipper detailing on the chest. Throw on a classic bum bag in a snazzy print to hold your money, phone, concert tickets and other beauty essentials. A pair of suede, black ankle boots with a small block heel is perfect for dancing the night away.

For a beach concert we love this gorgeous, pastel-checked playsuit. The mint, lilac and pink combo is right on trend for spring 2014. This hassle-free piece is perfect for throwing on and the only accessories you will need are a cool pair of shades or oversized sunhat. Pop on a pair of bright wedges for maximum comfort.

With temperatures on the rise, a pair of denim shorts is the ideal choice for a day of music and dancing. Go for a plain black pair for a cool look and wear with a soft, fitted polo-shirt for a dapper yet relaxed style. A pair of mesh espadrilles are perfect for comfort, so long as you remember the first rule of summer shoe style: no socks.

THE IMAGINEER to debut in Dubai

THE IMAGINEER, a spectacular performance of circus acrobats combined with the enhanced visual experience of IMAX, is set to woo Dubai with its debut performance in the city from April 17 to 19, 2014.

Presented in Dubai by Aqua Universe Events, THE IMAGINEER by Petit Cirque is a high-octane circus show set in the surreal fantasy world of the lead character's imagination. The 70-minute performance weaves around fantasy characters and amazing circus acts.

The debut performance in Dubai, featuring a cast from the Las Vegas circuit, will highlight stunning acrobatic performances by world-class talent. Renowned Dutch model, actor, dancer and acrobat Halili Gashi will play the lead character role.

Alexandra Shmidt, Managing Director of Aqua Universe Events, said: "The audience will be amazed by the grandeur of the performance, thanks to the directorial vision of Le Petit Cirque that has pushed the boundary by combining the brilliance of circus acrobatics and the visual experience of IMAX. We are excited to have Dubai as the first city in the world to experience THE IMAGINEER and look forward to putting up a memorable show."

THE IMAGINEER, which deals with the human mind's limitless potential for creativity, will premiere in Dubai on April 17 at 8pm, at the Meydan IMAX theatre. There will be two shows daily on April 18 and 19 at 5pm and 8pm respectively. Tickets are priced at Dh150, Dh250 and Dh400 for silver, gold and VIP respectively.

Le Petit Cirque, which literally means the little circus, is an experimental Vegas-based acrobat and theatre ensemble.

More music and macaws in Rio 2

The franchise's second film brings even more Latin flavour to charm the heart.

NEW RELEASE

The starring voice cast of Twentieth Century Fox's 2011 animated smash, Rio, has reunited for the follow-up, and this time out they are joined by a flock of top actors and musical talents new to the franchise. The new picture is well set to eclipse Rio's global box office tally of $486 million.

Returning for Rio 2, a 3D computer animated musical comedy adventure, are Anne Hathaway (Les Misérables), Jesse Eisenberg (The Social Network), Jamie Foxx (Django Unchained), Jemaine Clement of Flight of the Conchords fame, Black Eyed Peas' Will.i.am, comedians Tracy Morgan and George Lopez, as well as Brazilian singer Bebel Gilberto.

Joining the team are Oscar nominee Andy Garcia (The Godfather Part III), Grammy winner Bruno Mars, Emmy winner Kristin Chenoweth and Oscar winning veteran Rita Moreno (West Side Story).

Carlos Saldanha, who was inspired to create Rio based upon his experiences growing up in that city, is back as director, as are producers John C. Donkin and Bruce Anderson.

In Rio 2 we find Blu, Jewel and their three kids—all macaws—living the perfect domesticated life in that magical Brazilian city that features in the film's name.

But it soon becomes a jungle out there for them after they're hurtled from Rio to the wilds of the Amazon after Jewel decides the kids need to live like real birds and insists the family should venture into the heart of the rainforest.

As Blu tries to fit in with his new neighbours, he goes beak-to-beak with the vengeful Nigel, and meets the most fearsome adversary of all—his father-in-law. He also worries that he may lose Jewel and the kids to the call of the wild.

As Brazilian music legend Sergio Mendes returns along with composer John Powell, Rio 2 features new Brazilian artists and stunning original music by Janelle Monáe and The Wondaland Arts Society, who also voices a role in the film.

Did you know?

Roughly 150 Spix's macaws make up the giant "2" of the film's US teaser poster. The number of Spix's macaws within that formation seems to loosely follow the real-life population of the species left in existence, most of which are kept in captivity around other parts of the world.

Every movie Saldanha makes seems to be filled with warmth, charm and simple lessons about family, responsibility and friendship. While Rio 2 will charm youngsters, adults will also find inspiration in this beautiful animation.

The diversity of rainforest plants and animals the director draws upon for roles in Rio 2 is enthralling, as are the intricate character details, dense background imagery and often complex action and aerial sequences.

But more than anything it is the music which gives the Rio franchise its character, and Bruno Mars stands out the most as an exciting addition to the list of soundtrack talent. ●

Hollywood news

Crowning glory

In a very similar move to the one Demi Lovato made recently, Kelly Osbourne recently took to social media to reveal her purple hair has been shaved on one side. She said: "Here is one pic of my new hair cut!!! What do you guys think?" A bold choice, Kelly.

Goonies return

For anyone who grew up in the 1980s, there's no doubt that The Goonies didn't at least play a small part in your childhood. Now, director Richard Donner has announced that a sequel is on the cards, nearly 30 years after the release of the first movie. Further details and cast details are still to be announced.

Fall from grace

LONG GONE GLORY DAYS?

As his career continues to slip gradually further away from the golden days of years gone by, it seems as though Justin Bieber simply can't cut a break. Whereas the Canadian teen idol previously had the keys to anywhere or anything he required, the doors of Miami's biggest nightclubs were firmly closed to Bieber and his entourage last week.

According to sources, during the Baby singer's trip to Florida his people called ahead to try and book VIP tables at three of the hottest clubs in town, but were met with a flat "no" from the club owners. Whether or not this is a reflection of Bieber's waning popularity or simply to do with the fact that he is not yet 21, no amount of pleading or pledging to spend big bucks got them in.

And it seems as though other famous faces are now starting to join the Bieber bandwagon. Actor Rob Lowe recently revealed that: "I have tremendous empathy. He makes really good music, but he knows the dark secret is 80 per cent of his audience doesn't [care] about his music. And he knows it. It bums him out."

It leaves us to wonder, with other celebs, his fans, and even nightclubs losing interest in the former golden boy, who will be next to get involved in a spot of Bieber bashing?

R.I.P Peaches

As the daughter of Sir Bob Geldof and the Late Paula Yates, Peaches Geldof spent her entire life in the media spotlight. However, it was with sad news that the young socialite graced the covers of newspapers last week, as Peaches passed away at the tender age of 25. At the time of writing, the cause of her death was as yet unknown, however reports state that Peaches' body was found in her home in Kent, England, and police revealed that the death is being treated as: "non-suspicious but unexplained and sudden". Her father also released a statement following the announcement. Geldof, known as much for being a human rights activist as a musician, said: "We are beyond pain. She was the wildest, funniest, wittiest and most bonkers of all of us. We loved her and will cherish her forever." Peaches leaves behind a husband and two young sons.

Bollywood news

Secret song

In a secret deal, it seems as though music star Yo Yo Honey Singh has agreed to pen—and record—a song with the new Miss India, Koyal Rana. The rap star revealed: "I was a judge at the Miss India pageant and after the winner was selected I was to do a song and music video with her."

Warrior woman

It appears as though Deepika Padukone will get in touch with her wild side for her upcoming role in Bajirao Mastani. After rumours pitched her against Kareena Kapoor and Katrina Kaif, it was confirmed last week that Deepika would take the lead role of female warrior Mastani.

Beyond the grave

After rumours suggested she would be making an appearance in Gabbar, it turns out that Kareena Kapoor will, in fact, be taking on a fully-fledged role. A source revealed that: "Bebo plays Akshay's wife in the film. She is killed before the film begins. So Akshay keeps remembering her in flashbacks."

Wedding planner

As if she doesn't already have enough strings to her bow, Shilpa Shetty has announced plans to hone yet another skill—wedding planning. Shilpa recently announced that she will be organising a community wedding for 101 Indian couples who cannot afford the expense of a marriage.

Recipe

Piri-piri chicken

Why not try this spicy chicken dish at your next barbecue?

Ingredients

1 whole chicken, separated
Salt and black pepper
6-12 fresh red chillies
1 tbsp chopped garlic
1 tsp salt flakes
½ tsp oregano
½ tbsp paprika
100ml olive oil
50ml vinegar

Method

1. Preheat the oven to 180C. Place between six and 12 of the chillies (according to how spicy you want it to be) on a roasting tray and roast them for 10 minutes.

2. Allow the chillies to cool then roughly chop them. Place the chillies, garlic, salt, oregano, paprika, olive oil and vinegar into a pan and simmer for five minutes.

3. Leave to cool, then blend the mixture to a purée in a food processor or with a hand blender.

4. Place the chicken pieces in a sealable plastic bag, and then add half the piri-piri sauce.

Seal and marinate in the fridge for at least one hour, overnight if desired.

5. Cook the marinated chicken on a griddle pan for two to three minutes on each side, until it becomes golden brown.

6. Transfer the chicken to a roasting tray and roast at 200C for 30 minutes, until cooked through. Alternatively, barbecue for 10-15 minutes until cooked through, basting regularly with the remaining piri-piri sauce.

ARIES

(MAR 21 - APR 20)

Somebody's words have cut deeper than they should and left you doubting your own abilities in certain areas. The only way to clear the issue is to bring it up with the other person. You may not like confrontation but sometimes it is necessary.

TAURUS

(APR 21 - MAY 21)

You may have been looking at getting into a new industry recently but there is a fear of the unknown that's putting you off. Perhaps it might be worth getting a genuine opinion from someone who has plenty of experience in this area?

GEMINI

(MAY 22 - JUN 21)

Following a hectic time both at work and at home, a relatively quiet period lies ahead. This could provide you with the perfect chance to take some time out. Even if you don't go away anywhere, use the peace and quiet to rest and relax.

CANCER

(JUN 22 - JUL 23)

Pride is never a good trait, and for someone so balanced you can be guilty of letting it take over every now and then. Sometimes it may be necessary to simply admit that you were wrong, apologise to those involved, and move on in a positive manner.

LEO

(JUL 24 - AUG 23)

A health kick is feeling like it's on the cards. While it may be tempting to do this with friends, you may find that a whole new world opens up for you if you go it alone. Your personal goals will be more than enough to keep you motivated.

VIRGO

(AUG 24 - SEP 23)

While you can often be considered as the diplomat of the zodiac, a close friend needs your advice and you may surprise them with what you have to say. Making your opinions known is no bad thing, but try to choose your words carefully.

LIBRA

(SEP 24 - OCT 23)

If something sounds too good to be true, unfortunately, it probably is. Someone may be about to offer you an opportunity that definitely seems a little unreal. While they may have built it up a little too much, it's still worth hearing him or her out.

SCORPIO

(OCT 24 - NOV 22)

Sometimes you may get fed up with being the sounding board for everyone else's problems. If you really feel as though you have no genuine advice to offer, make this known. Pretending that you will be able to help is no good for anyone involved.

SAGITTARIUS

(NOV 23 - DEC 21)

A small investment you made some time ago could be brought to your attention. A financial windfall is unlikely, but you could have made a pretty wise decision. Perhaps you might benefit from sitting on your investment for a little while longer?

CAPRICORN

(DEC 22 - JAN 20)

A calm and quiet period is coming to an end, and work will start to pick up pace with lightning speed. You will be able to cope with this; just make sure you have everything you will need. Proper planning will be key to sailing through this busy time.

AQUARIUS

(JAN 21 - FEB 19)

Recent efforts that you have put into a friendship may seem futile, considering that a full-blown falling out has seen you both giving the silent treatment. Be an adult and admit you were wrong, even if the other party won't admit his or her mistakes.

PISCES

(FEB 20 - MAR 20)

If you are making travel plans, get searching online to find out the hidden treasures that really appeal to you – far away from the tourist trail. The rustic side of a culture will excite you much more, so make sure you know what you want to explore.
