Poem of the week

The Lost Love By Divya Raisinghani

I never believed in love
Until I met a lovely dove

He was fair white and really tall
And I always saterd and alas! I fall

I always longed for him to come
And one day he ran and finally jumped

We danced and sang all day long
And then I realised he wasn't to stay long

He flew high, he flew high
Leaving me with regrets which made me cry

Fashion tips for the PETITES

If you're petite, your height can feel like a serious hindrance to your style. So until science comes up with a way for short folks to add a few extra inches, your best bet is to rely on a few clever fashion tips and tricks to fake those extra inches.

Flared Jeans

Fitted jeans with a distinct flare at the bottom create the illusion of a longer leg. The trick here is to keep the fit of the jean super-slim through the leg, and to make sure the waistband hits your natural waist and not any lower. For optimal height, be sure to pair your flares with a waist-length top, or a blouse you can tuck in.

Ditch the gigantic bag

Keeping your accessories appropriately scaled to your body size is a smart move for petite girls, starting with that oversized bag. Here's why: Every time you cause the eye to take in width, you reduce the amount of height it takes in. That means smaller cross-body bags, clutches, and small top-handle totes are your best bet.

Maxi Skirts

It's common fashion folklore that small women simply cannot wear floor-grazing skirts and dresses, but luckily that's been proven entirely false. In fact, a well-cut maxi skirt can actually give you the appearance of looking taller. Avoid anything with thick pleats or too many layers and be sure to keep your top fitted—a tucked-in T-shirt and a cropped leather jacket, for example—so as to not drown in fabric.

Short is short, long is long

When you're petite, it's just a fact that you should either go super-long or super-short which means avoiding calf-length and knee-lengths. Mini-skirts show more skin, which creates the illusion of a longer leg. While ankle straps typically aren't ideal for short ladies (they cut off your leg), they can work with super-short skirts since more skin is being shown. Of course, if you're wearing a mini, make sure it's not offensively short—let's keep it chic, ladies.

Pointy flats? Yes, please

Since nobody can be expected to wear sky-high heels every day, petite gals should invest in a pair of pointy flats. Why? Because it's a known fact that shoes with pointed toes lengthen your leg line.

Not just for TEA

If you're not a regular tea drinker, then this might just make you change your mind. It's common knowledge that tea has healing properties, which is probably why a lot of people prefer it over coffee, but did you know that the tea bags you casually throw away can be put to more good use? That's right, used tea bags can be used in many different ways, so why waste them? Here are a few ways to re-use these bags and help you save, long after your cup is empty.

Soothe and rejuvenate

To soothe minor skin irritations like sunburns, bruises, mosquito bites and cold sores, take a cool damp tea-bag and press it on the affected area to relieve inflammation and promote healing. You can also use this trick to relieve dark circles and rejuvenate tired puffy eyes by placing a tea bag on each closed eye for 10-15 minutes.

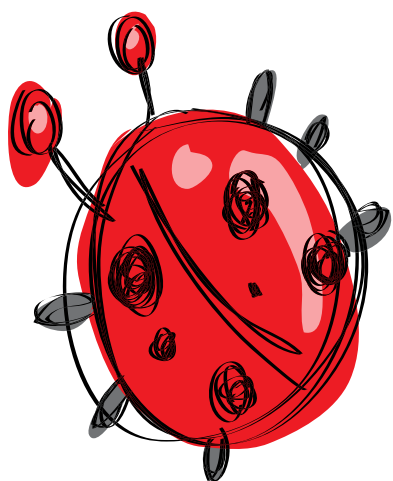

Deodoriser

Tea bags can make great deodorisers as well. To keep your footwear scent free, put a dried tea bag in each shoe and keep it overnight to absorb any odours. You can also place a dried teabag in your closet or even your fridge, if you want to freshen it up. Just place a few tea bags in a plastic container and they'll do the job.

Degreaser

Soaking your dishes overnight with a few brewed tea bags will help remove tough grease, you'll find the next morning that they'll be easier to clean. You can also use this to clean your stove, just take your teabags and give your stove a little scrub before throwing them out.

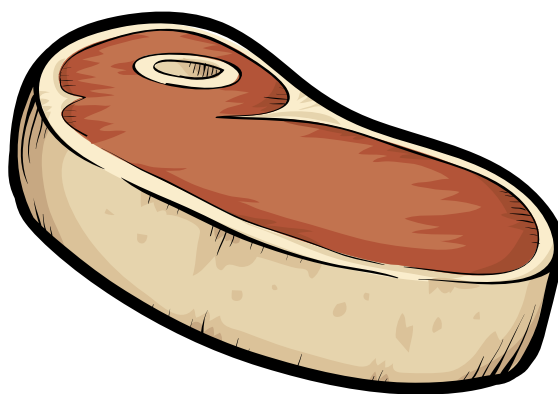

No bugs

A few tea bags can go a long way when it comes to keeping rodents and bugs out of your home. Simply place them in your cupboards, pantries and other problem areas. Mint flavours tend to work best, mice and bugs hate peppermint.

Planting teas

You can recycle tea bags for garden use also as they enrich the soil by increasing nitrogen levels, and they fertilise your plants. Place the bags on the bottom of the pots to help retain water better when watering.

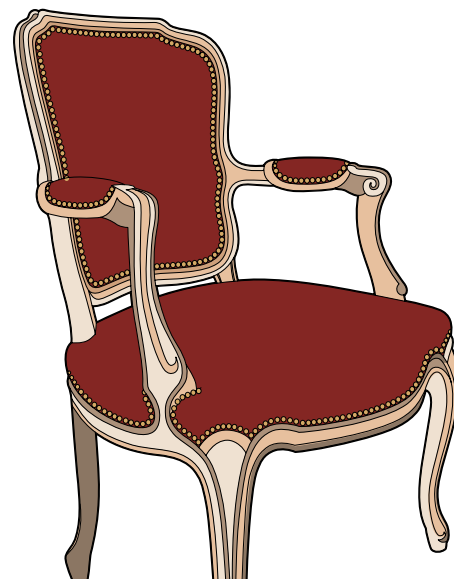

Marinate that meat

In order to prevent the meat from getting hard and resilient, marinate it with already used teabags. The tea's aroma will make the meat's taste richer and it will also make it softer.

Spick-and-span

The black tea can help you clean the house, just add a couple of tablespoons in hot water and rub the dark wooden floors to extreme shine. It can be a chip and very effective alternative to polish your antique wooden furniture. Even windows and mirrors can benefit from this solution; it is particularly suitable for removing stains. For this purpose, it is best to use a clean cotton cloth and a spray bottle.

planning tips

People manage their careers in one of two ways; they either wait for what their company has to offer or they make things happen. Those who make things happen know how to set goals. Career planning is a never ending process and you will probably have to reassess your plan several times during your working life. In today's business world the typical person joining the work force will have as many as five to six different jobs by the time he or she retires. People continue to change and evolve throughout life, so does the job market. Once you've clearly identified what you're looking for in a career, you will find that there are a number of paths that match your skills. Akhtaboot is here to help you plan your next best step with the following career planning tips.

Know When It's Time for a Change

If you feel stuck in a hole, dreading each day of work, quitting your job can be the answer. While problems exist in any job, many employees seem to rush into leaving their jobs before looking closely at the issues and possibilities at hand. Leaving your job should be strategic and properly timed. As hard as it may sound to just pack your stuff and walk out, quitting your job can be a smart option in many cases. Remember, you've worked hard to create a good name at your company, so maintain your professionalism at all times and always leave on good terms.

Look for Learning Opportunities

Most people tend to lean towards the familiar. This is not a bad thing as it actually gives you a sense of emotional security with your decisions and minimizes risk and stress. But when your comfort zone is standing in the way of your career advancement, you need to figure out a way to break out of your safe place. You always have to look for ways to develop your current skills and knowledge and make sure they're current. The area outside your comfort zone is simply a learning zone. When you learn new skills or gain different experiences, you are simply stretching the boundaries of your comfort zone out to include that new area.

Seek out a Mentor

Great mentors can be found in a variety of places, and you can even look outside your current workplace. Before seeking out mentors, you need to identify your specific expectations and the role you want the mentor to play in your career. Choosing someone who shares your values and who works in the same industry as you are is a good option. Test the waters by asking for advice. Don't hesitate to reveal as much of yourself as possible. Mentors are most likely to show interest in those in whom they see a little of themselves.

Measure Your Progress

As you climb the corporate ladder, you need to assess your progress periodically. Think about your short-term and long-term professional objectives. You may have started your job right after university. Now you have a lot of experience; more than what your job requires. Think of ways to utilize your newly acquired experiences at your current job. You should feel a sense of personal and professional satisfaction in what you do.

HEALTH NEWS

Eating disorders are real, complex, and devastating conditions that can have serious consequences for health, productivity, and relationships. They are not a fad, phase, or a lifestyle choice. An eating disorder is characterized when eating, exercise and body weight or shape become an unhealthy preoccupation of someone's life.

While women are more commonly affected by eating disorders, men can and do develop eating disorders as well. Although the age group most at risk from developing eating disorders is between 12 and 20, anyone can be affected as it can happen at any age. Their physical warning signs include: rapid weight loss, loss of menstruation in girls, signs of damage due to induced vomiting such as calluses on knuckles, and feeling cold most of the time. Behavioral and psychological warning signs include: preoccupation with eating, food, body shape and weight, feeling anxious or "out of control" around meal times, excessive exercise, unnecessary dieting, use of laxatives, and obsessive rituals around food preparation and eating. There is no known way to prevent eating disorders, but early treatment may be the best way to keep the disorder from progressing. Knowing the early signs and seeking treatment right away can help prevent both emotional and physical health complications as well as increase the likelihood of recovery. If you think a loved one has an eating disorder, express your concerns in a caring manner and kindly but firmly encourage the person to seek trained professional help.

The land of LAKES & VOLCANOES

At this time of year, people desire going on vacation for several reasons. Also, now is a great time to discover the beautiful country of Nicaragua, thanks to its pleasant temperature. This wedge-shaped country boasts extraordinary landscape of volcanoes, lakes, mountains and vast swathes of rainforest – which helps make it the country a favourite amongst travel enthusiasts. Nicaragua will not disappoint you as it offers some heavyweight tourist attractions. And if you're a nature lover, you're about to experience a natural paradise. There's a lot you can do in the largest country of Central America, so prepare for a once-in-a-lifetime adventure.

BOBADILLA CROSS ON VOLCÁN MASAYA

LAGUNA DE MASAYA

The Spaniards said this was the gate to hell, and put the Bobadilla cross (named for the priest who planted it) atop a now sadly inaccessible cliff. Volcán Masaya is the most heavily venting volcano in Nicaragua, and in a more litigious nation there is no way you would ever be allowed to drive up to the lip of a volcanic cone as volatile as the Santiago crater.

But you have to go. Masaya is already inside the volcano, an enormous and ancient crater called El Ventarrón, with a barely perceptible rim that runs from Ticuantepe to Masatepe, and around the Laguna de Masaya. Try to arrive in the afternoon, when the crater's thousands of chocoyos (parakeets) return to their nests in the crater walls, apparently unharmed by the billowing toxic gases.

The 1888 Mercado Artesanías is a somewhat incongruous, black-basalt Gothic structure with a Spanish-fortress motif, including turrets, towers and oversized gates. Despite a major fire in 1966, it was used as a regular market until 1978, when Somoza's Guardia Nacional all but leveled it. Today it's a wonderful place to stroll, with attractive booths separated by wide and breezy walkways, showcasing the highest-quality crafts in the country.

All about that JAZZ

The 13th edition welcomes more artists and special surprises

30,000 fans to gather in one venue;
13 years since conception;
3,000 tickets sold before line-up announcement;

By Mae Cabigas

These aren't just any numbers; these are numbers that talk... Talk about the massively popular festival that is the Emirates Airline Dubai Jazz Festival.

"We're not selling concerts; we're selling a memorable atmosphere," this is what Anthony Younes said when asked about the Dubai Jazz Festival. "People they love to be associated with jazz," this is according to the co-founder and CEO of organizers Chill Out Productions.

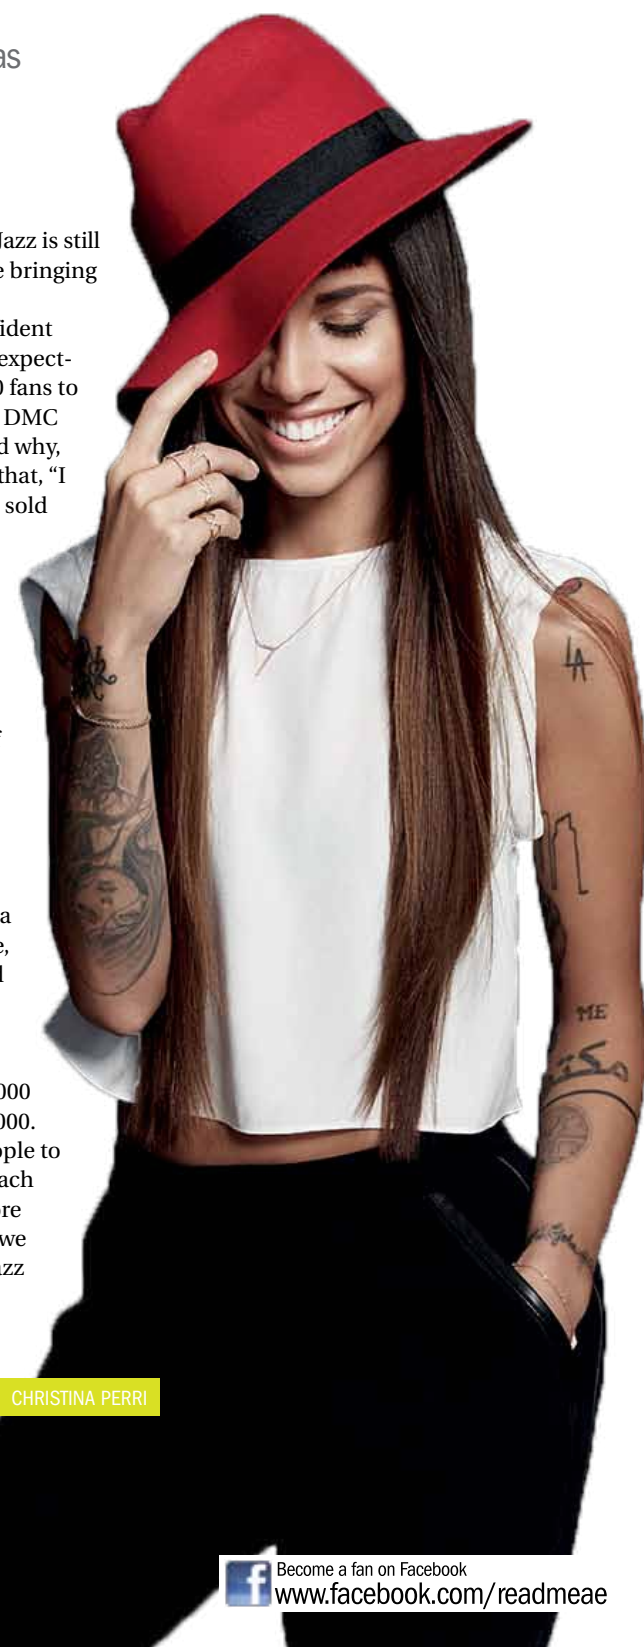

It's safe to say that anyone who does not know about this festival must be living under a rock. Having been around for the last thirteen years, Dubai Jazz Festival is the longest running music festival in the region and has certainly made a mark in the music and arts industry in Dubai. "The 13th edition of the Emirates Airline Dubai Jazz Festival 2015 promises to be yet another one-of-a-kind experience for fans and artists alike. The festival represents a return to where it all started in 2003 at Media City. We are thoroughly excited by what is in store under the event's new theme, 'A Unique Take On Music, Art and Lifestyle,'" said Anthony.

The 3-day event will showcase performances from world class artists, Anthony talks about the performers saying that, "Besides Esperanza Spalding being jazz, Lindsey Sterling is a new age kind of jazz, Christina Perri is a mix of soul and rock. Most of the artists that we are bringing in the likes of James Blunt who promised to do something jazzy, Sting who plays jazz and John Legend who plays something more of a classic jazz." Furthermore he says that the "jazz element is still there and for them to accept to play in a Jazz Festival, it means they have that jazz roots in their blood. So Jazz is still there, even if we're bringing in the big names."

Anthony is confident about the festival expecting around 30,000 fans to gather together in DMC venue, when asked why, he positively said that, "I know for a fact we sold probably around 2,000 to 3,000 tickets before announcing the artists." He goes on to say that those people, "are the biggest fans of the Jazz Festival. They will come whoever is performing." The festival is set to stage at the Dubai Media City Amphitheatre, where it all started back in 2003, Anthony says that the "venue here can take up to 15,000 but we stop at 12,000. We don't want people to be crashing into each other." Furthermore he explains that, "we always cater the jazz festival in a way that it is a relaxed atmosphere, this is how we want to keep it."

JOHN LEGEND

We asked if the audience should expect something new this year and according to Anthony, they are “expecting something really exciting, the ‘All of Me’ song of John Legend is going to be performed for the first time in an oriental, Middle Eastern arrangement or composition.” When asked to elaborate, he says, “It was composed by the famous Lebanese composer Jean Marie Riachi, it’s something amazing and one that people should look forward to as its going to be the finale song of John Legend’s concert. So it’s basically a mix of oriental music and jazz.”

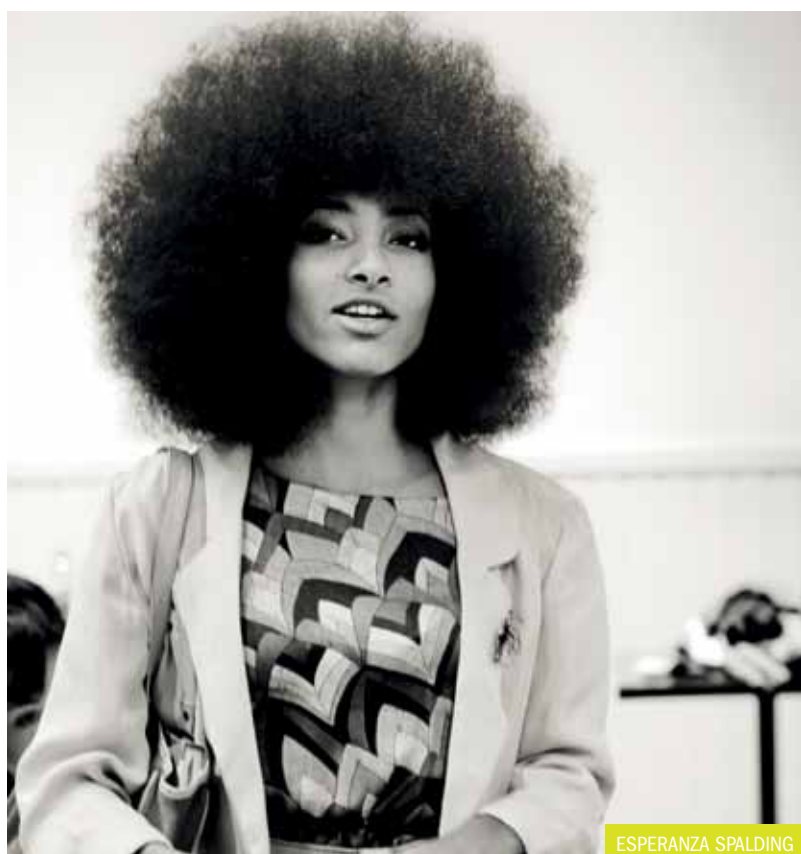

Also in addition to that, music lovers don’t need to wait for the day of the event to indulge themselves in the wonderful world of jazz, as the festival is expanding its reach into the whole city. This year welcomes the Urban Sessions, a combination of the best dining and music in Dubai, with participating restaurants like Jazz@ PizzaExpress, Frankie’s Italian, Up on the Tenth Jazz Bar & Trader Vic’s Souk Madinat. All of these can be experienced on the nights leading up to the festival from the 19th until the 27th.

With the event only days away, Chill Out Productions is now busy preparing for the festival to make it a memorable experience for all of us. Anthony would like to remind the audience that “the parking in Dubai Media City is very limited. So we want to address to everyone, please use public transportation.” Besides that, the event welcomes everyone to celebrate the music of Jazz and to come and enjoy a relaxing musical atmosphere.

A pleasurable DRIVE

By Wissam Aoun

Comfortable and track-ready, the Hyundai Genesis Coupe is one of the better performance-car picks if you're on a tight budget. Hyundai has continued to update the Genesis Coupe, making it much more attractive to car enthusiasts around the world. As I got the chance to get behind the wheel of the Genesis Coupe, I felt as if I was driving a real sports car. Not only that, but another thing I also noticed is that it has stolen the attention of many drivers and pedestrians on the road. The vehicle boasts an impressive V6-powered 3.8-litre engine with direct injection, bumping output to 348 horsepower and 295 lb-ft of torque.. As for the exterior, Hyundai has focused more on adding standard features, like heated mirrors and fog lights. Not to forget the sharp and the aggressive front fascia which gives it a personality that's far removed from anything else in the Hyundai lineup. On the inside we see a new cloth interior scheme, and the performance dials on the center-stack that show instant torque and mpg. Unlike some other sports car, the back seats are actually usable, and the trunk space isn't too bad either. As you drive on the roads, the Genesis Coupe pulls it all together on the road, with the suspension providing excellent feedback and those bright-red Brembo brakes can bring the Genesis to a stop in a hurry. If you want a high-value, high-style, high-power, high-grip 2-door, definitely check out the Genesis Coupe.

Lexus NX: An urban athlete on the road

The latest offering by Lexus, the NX has just been launched; get all the insight that you need for this beauty straight from Lexus Chief Engineer Takeaki Kato, who delves deep into the details.

By Danielle Hosri

What is Lexus NX all about? The Lexus NX is a vehicle that everyone aspires to. The car is like an urban athlete or like a football player. We wanted the Lexus NX to be the leader dominating the field, with energy, power, agility, and skill. It is for people who want to stand out from the regular crowd. Of course, Lexus newly developed a great engine, but power is just one factor, and handling is another, maybe an even bigger factor. The NX is here to offer full driving pleasure. We also wanted the speakers to be good. People have always loved this vehicle thanks to its beautiful signature design. The car doesn't only perform; it leads, just like a top athlete. At Lexus, as you know, we believe in the pursuit of perfection. An athlete keeps his eyes on the ball. But at the same time he has to be aware of every detail on the field. That's what the Lexus NX is about.

Is now the right time for such an SUV style?

This vehicle now competes in a segment that is the fastest growing global style of luxury in the world. Still relatively small, but a lot of growth is going to take place over the next ten years, so we feel like we got it running at the right time. Look at the target audience we have. We are talking about an entry level vehicle in the market, who provides this much content and packaging into an entry segment? And I think that is for us what makes us very competitive.

The car has a more distinctive style, like a more sporty style, so people expected a rather dynamic performance based on this style, so we focused not only on the design, but also the performance.

It's okay to have a car that looks distinctive, but it has to perform. If it looks fast, it has to be fast. Do you think you can deliver that?

I think we've done a wonderful job of taking this incredible design and packaging it with something that provides segment leading performance. It may not be the fastest and it may not be this or that, but when you put it all together into one package, I think you're going to see that this is the best overall vehicle in the segment, because it provides everything. I think the team has done a wonderful job spending time on tracks and roads all over the world developing the product to make sure that it delivers a good performance.

This vehicle is an experience, it appeals to all your senses. Lexus is proud of it, and I am proud of it, and eventually you will be proud of it. The NX changes the game, it's the very first no compromise SUV. Urban and athletic, it has the right stuff. The design of the NX is low and warm. It's sophisticated, classy, and muscular, all at the same time. From any angle, this vehicle is young, energetic and dynamic. It stands out from the crowd and its drivers will too. Inside is all about luxury and comfort. The cockpit, and it is a cockpit, looks as good as it feels, offering sheer driving pleasure. The most authentic materials, including real leather are used for the ultimate vehicle. The driver will simply love the NX.

The bigger the better

BMW has launched its new 2 Series Active Tourer, which has grown an extra row of seats to become the Gran Tourer. It's pretty much the same mini-minivan/tall hatchback that was introduced almost a year ago. The 2 Series Gran Tourer is a front-wheel drive, seven-seat people-carrier and is set to debut at the Geneva show in early March. The German Automaker has described it as a new vehicle segment. At 179.4 inches long, 70.9 inches wide, and 63.3 inches tall, it is both longer and taller than the Active Tourer, or almost exactly the size of the Mazda 5. The 2 series Gran Tourer shares its exterior styling with the Active Tourer through to the trailing edges of its front door. And from the inside, the car uses the same dashboard and buttons as the Active Tourer.

The biggest and the badddest

The creative sound blaster X7 is the ultimate speaker for gaming and audio enthusiasts. This feature-packed ultra High Resolution Audio device serves as a digital-to-analog converter and can also power a set of speakers or even a 5.1 surround system, and promises to take your audio to the next level. The new device boasts a 24-bit/192kHz high-resolution 127dB digital-to-analog converter and 100W-capable audio amplifier combined in a compact box that's not bigger than most computer desk speakers. You can basically plug this in with any device, be it a computer, smartphone, tablet or even an HDTV. After everything is plugged, prepare yourself for a fantastic experience because this amplifier is bound to deliver extremely clear and powerful high-resolution audio for games, music, and movies.

Many times we have to go through the rest of the day without our phones due to them running out of battery. And unfortunately, that might get you in some sort of trouble. Portable chargers might be a life saviour in such a case, however the problem with them is that you still need to plug them into a wall socket to gain a charge. But thanks to mother nature, Kraftwerk has found another way to handle that. It is a fuel-based hand-held portable generator that has launched as a Kickstar project. Kraftwerk is essentially a tiny power plant you can hold in your hand to produce electricity. Its USB plugin charges hand-held devices, such as smartphones or cameras. All you need to do to get this working is to insert a small amount of standard lighter gas, then plug your device into the single USB port and it will start charging. To produce electricity, the fuel cells convert chemical energy into electrical energy, delivering 2 watts of continuous output with a peak power output of 10 watts.

Good response to DAST 2015

120 submissions made for Dubai Award for Sustainable Transport; a 44 per cent rise over last year's participation.

AWARDS

The number of nominations made to the Dubai Award for Sustainable Transport (DAST) has topped 120 nominations from public, semi-public and private entities in the UAE, as received by the higher organising committee of the award.

Abdul Mohsen Ibrahim Younes, Chairperson of the DAST higher organising committee and CEO of Strategy & Corporate Governance at the Roads and Transport Authority (RTA), expressed satisfaction with the considerable hike in the number of submissions made for the award, noting that it represented a 44 per cent increase over last year's figure.

"From inception, the DAST higher organising committee has been endeavouring to uplift its business processes in keeping with the massive upswing in the RTA's projects and initiatives, besides broadening the scope of participation in the award by enticing the largest possible number of public and semi-public entities as well as private businesses in the UAE to contribute to leveraging the sustainable development drive in the UAE, side by side with the RTA's efforts on this score.

"DAST is viewed as a practical manifestation of the RTA's strategy geared towards enhancing its vision of providing safe and smooth transport for all in keeping with the ongoing development in Dubai spanning business, economic, tourist and real estate sectors, among others. This initiative is a key step towards inviting the business sector, government departments, quasi-government bodies and private organisations to team up with the RTA's efforts aimed at stepping up the integration of various mass transit means," added Younes.

"The DAST higher organising committee announced earlier this year the introduction of a new category to the award – smart transportation apps – which caters to all initiatives and practices relating to smart applications of sustainable transport with the objective of developing new concepts enriching the award and ultimately contributing to broadening and uplifting the standing of the award in serving mass transportation in general and sustainable transport in particular.

"Through launching this award, the RTA intends to hit a number of targets, including educating and encouraging individuals and social organisations to play an active and positive role in supporting and assisting the realisation of its objectives in developing the infrastructure and means of public transport, and showcasing the leading role of the RTA in bolstering the partnership and cooperation between various entities and strategic partners in the field of transport, safety and conserving the environment," he added.

"The award also seeks to enhance the importance of sustainable transport to make it part of the key concerns of various business organisations, raise the awareness and embed the sense of responsibility and initiative amongst various community segments, particularly firms and establishments, foster successful initiatives in the fields of mobility, safety and environment and spread them across the business community, and motivate the creativity, pioneering spirit and the initiative in a host of mobility aspects to maximise the benefit of all parties," Younes added.

The wait GOES ON

Toto Wolff is hoping for Lewis Hamilton to sign a new contract with Mercedes before the kickoff of the 2015 season in Australia on March 15. The 2014 world champion is in the final 12 months of his three-year deal with the Silver Arrows before becoming a free agent at the end of the season. Last year, there were talks over Hamilton extending his partnership with Mercedes, however the 30-year-old has decided earlier this month to put contract talks on hold around the time of the Russian Grand Prix to keep his focus on the title challenge. Mercedes chief Wolff has admitted that he wants the situation resolved within the next month, although states that there is no deadline for finalising the talks.

Aiming high

Nasser Hussain has claimed that England must not just aim to qualify from their World Cup group, but rather try to achieve one of the top spots in order to avoid a quarter-final meeting with South Africa. England were placed in Pool A, which means they are along with tournament co-hosts, Australia and New Zealand, and Sri Lanka. All they require is to finish above Bangladesh, Afghanistan and Scotland in order to qualify, and if they manage to qualify high they would most likely avoid meeting South Africa from Pool B and face India, Pakistan, or West Indies instead. Hussain stated "England have got a good chance at this World Cup because of the group they're in, But they'll have to avoid South Africa in the knockout stage."

The STRUGGLE is real

Tiger Woods has announced that he will take an indefinite break due to what he called an unacceptable performance for tournament play. The 39-year-old withdrew injured from last week's event at Torrey Pines after just 12 holes. "I need a lot of work on my game, and to spend time with people that are important to me," said Woods. "I enter a tournament to compete at the highest level, and when I think I'm ready, I'll be back." the 14-time major winner has withdrawn from three of his last eight competitive tournaments.

MOVIE REVIEW

Testament of Youth

"A wonderful movie portraying the effects of war"

A film that unravels a different side of war, The Testament of Youth is nothing short of telling a worthwhile story. Derived from the pages of Vera Brittain's war memoir by the same name, the words come to life with the help of producer David Heyman who is also the one behind box office hits Harry Potter, Gravity and I am Legend. Directed by James Kent, the movie tells the story of Vera Brittain's encounter with the effects of World War I. It follows how Vera postpones her studies at Oxford University to serve as a Voluntary Aid Detachment nurse in London and abroad. After the war she returns to Oxford to read history and later becomes a writer, feminist and pacifist.

The author and protagonist of the story is played by Swedish actress Alicia Vikander, who gave a stellar performance on portraying the character. The unraveling of the story is on point but could have used a lot less unneeded scenes, in order to shorten the length of the film. The cinematography was remarkable and so was the script and how the actors delivered it. This is definitely a movie that would require for you to sit down and absorb each and every detail.

Angelina Jolie opens centre for women in war-zones

The Unbroken actress has opened a centre at the London School of Economics to help women who are victims of violence in warzones. She said: "If you were to ask me who I think this Centre is for, I picture someone who is not in this room today. I think of a girl I met in Iraq three weeks ago. She is 13 years old, but instead of going to school, she sits on the floor in a makeshift tent. Now she may never be able to complete her education, or get married or have a family, because in her society victims of rape are shunned, and considered shameful. To my mind, what we have begun today at London School of Economics is for that Iraqi girl and others like her."

Jon Stewart to leave The Daily Show

Jon Stewart recently announced today that he will be leaving The Daily Show after 16 years as host. Although he has yet to confirm his final appearance, the comedian will be stepping down later this year. The news was confirmed via Twitter with a statement from Comedy Central that states, "For the better part of the last two decades, we have had the incredible honor and privilege of working with Jon Stewart, his comedic brilliance is second to none. Jon has been at the heart of Comedy Central, championing and nurturing the best talent in the industry, in front of and behind the camera."

Gauahar Khan gets 'selective' about work

Model and actress Gauahar Khan, who hogged the limelight with her dance performance in the song Jhalla Walla from Ishaqzaade, now wants to be selective with her work and is open to doing more dance numbers. According to Khan, "Right now I am doing selective work. I don't want to do just a song. People love me for my dance and I hope that something great comes up." Furthermore she shares that, "If I get a really interesting dance number, I will definitely want to do it," the model first showcased her dancing skills in reality show Jhalak Dikhhla Jaa. Meanwhile, the former Bigg Boss winner is also set to make her acting debut with Rajeev Jha's film Fever.

What's in your stars?

The Read. astrologer tells you what you can expect over the next seven days.

ARIES

(MAR 21 - APR 20)

You're trying to get a jump on the week. You want to get as much done as possible, and to get ahead without making it look like you're trying too hard. After all, wouldn't it be great for your reputation if you could make magic happen and not break a sweat?

TAURUS

(APR 21 - MAY 21)

Some travel plans are getting finalized (you can't wait!), someone who thinks they're much smarter than you concedes that you were right and they were wrong about something and someone you've never understood explains their side of things.

GEMINI

(MAY 22 - JUN 21)

Nothing is as it seems. You can tell something's up, but that doesn't help you. Try to draw people out, but don't work too hard at it. Go into the week with an open mind, because something radical is under way, and you're going to find out about it.

CANCER

(JUN 22 - JUL 23)

You don't particularly feel like engaging with the rest of the world. It's all so exhausting and the possibility of being misunderstood is great. Balance is key, especially the balance between caring what other people think and not worrying about what other people think.

LEO

(JUL 24 - AUG 23)

Something flippant and funny and just a little biting might really rattle someone, even if you're absolutely, obviously kidding. Offhand comments have a way of sinking into people, and you don't want people you adore walking around slightly damaged by you.

VIRGO

(AUG 24 - SEP 23)

This week is your reward for weeks of doing good for the world; a sudden surge of great stuff heads your way, most likely in the form of romance and creative inspiration. Oh, happy days! You're still walking on air. You're perhaps even nicer to people than usual.

LIBRA

(SEP 24 - OCT 23)

This week is kind of gloomy, but not in a very noticeable way. It's more like an afterthought, a not-all-that-distracting feeling. Mostly you just feel unbalanced. But don't worry, because on later on, the feeling evaporates in the heat of a romantic bender.

SCORPIO

(OCT 24 - NOV 22)

This week draws on your powers of determination and self-control. You're under intense scrutiny at work, for whatever reason. In any case, you work incredibly well with other people. This may explain why everyone wants to be on your side.

SAGITTARIUS

(NOV 23 - DEC 21)

You find your outlook affected by the amount of money in your wallet. You have a desire to keep more of it in there. It's true that no amount of money can buy you a good time; even a day skiing in the most fantastic setting of all would be for naught if you weren't into it.

CAPRICORN

(DEC 22 - JAN 20)

This week is pretty much what you always want in your workdays: lots getting done, a happy outlook, high energy, recognition in the areas where you deserve it. Of course, the compliments from your good friends are the ones that mean the most.

AQUARIUS

(JAN 21 - FEB 19)

Every fiber in your being is telling you climb out of the cockpit and onto the wing to repair any problems. But you know full well that you can't climb out of the cockpit and fix the wing — you'll get sucked into outer space! You have to keep flying the thing.

PISCES

(FEB 20 - MAR 20)

You become the point person in a group; it could be anyone. The reason you're perceived as a good person for everyone else to follow? It's because you seem to be someone who knows other people, including influential people, important people.
